Jakarta, Indonesia

Foreign Minister Kiichi Aichi of Japan called Saturday for a broad-based meeting, possibly with Communist participation, on the whole Indochina crisis.

He spoke before a closed session of the Asian and Pacific conference on Cambodia, which the Communist countries of Asia and some nonaligned nations boycotted.

Aichi's speech reflected the hopes of most delegates that the Cambodian conference could develop into a launching pad for a broader-based meeting.

Tel Aviv

Israeli warplanes attacked an Egyptian naval installation on the Red Sea 500 miles south of the Suez Canal Saturday and sank a destroyer and a Soviet-built missile boat, the military command here reported.

It was one of the longest Israeli combat flights of the Middle East confrontation.

The military command said the attack was in retaliation for Egypt's sinking of an Israeli fishing boat in the Mediterranean and the mining of the harbor at Elath, the Israeli port on the Gulf of Aqaba.

Washington

Secretary of Welfare Robert H. Finch, once regarded as the most effective liberal Republican voice in the Nixon administration, has called a mass meeting of his employees Monday to defend the quality of his leadership.

Finch, it was learned, plans to reply to complaints that he has allowed the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, kingdom of domestic agencies, to drift and has abdicated responsibility to speak out against what dissidents within the department regard as the rightward lean of the administration.

Key Biscayne, Fla.

Tears in her eyes, a 71-year-old woman who said her husband died in World War I grabbed an American flag from antiwar demonstrators marching on the Florida White House Saturday and scolded them for carrying it upside down.

Ms. Fitzgerald scrambled out of a car as the group of about 200 protesters neared the end of a 2½-mile march on President Nixon's residence.

After she grabbed the huge flag, the demonstrators later succeeded in tugging the flag away from her.

Chicago

Rival factions of a motorcycle gang clashed on a Chicago beach Friday night and police reported five combatants wounded by shotgun blasts.

Police said about 50 members of the Chicago Outlaws, a motorcycle group, engaged in the midnight battle on the Foster Ave. beach of Lake Michigan.

Police Sgt. Joseph DiLeonardi said Johnny Davis, 33, recently deposed as president of the group, was shot twice after he led about 20 supporters into battle with about 30 members opposed to Davis.

45 Favor Spending Cutoff Church Bill Gains Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate advocates of legislation to cut off spending for U. S. military operations in Cambodia now appear to have the votes to pass it in defiance of the White House.

But their voting strength could be diluted if Republican leaders and the administration succeed in fashioning an alternative acceptable to President Nixon.

An Associated Press survey of the Senate showed 45 senators now favor the appropriations cutoff, and five more are leaning toward support.

Thirty-four senators are lined up in opposition to the measure; 16 are uncommitted.

That lineup is based on an AP poll and on the public declarations of senators on the appropriations cutoff sponsored by Sens. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky.

At least two senators are certain to be absent when voting begins, probably next week. Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., and Sen. Karl E. Mundt, R-S.D., both are hospitalized. That means a maximum of 98 votes, with 50 votes sufficient for passage.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said Saturday he is confident supporters have the votes they need.

But Sen. Hugh Scott, the Republican leader, said neither side has 50 votes. He said 12 to 15 undecided senators hold the balance of decision.

The White House has declared its flat opposition to legislation the administration insists would infringe upon President Nixon's constitutional powers as commander in chief.

Mansfield said he sees no chance of compromise on the issue. "Frankly, I don't think the amendment is strong enough," he said. "But it's a good start."

The amendment, attached by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to a bill authorizing military sales abroad, would prohibit the use of appropriations for the purpose of "retaining United States forces in Cambodia."

Nixon has pledged the withdrawal of U.S. forces by June 30, and sponsors of the amendment—now 32 strong—said their measure could not take effect before that time.

Scott called another conference of Republican leaders Tuesday in his effort to work out an alternative acceptable to the administration.

The Scott formula would have the Senate declare its opposition to a wider war in Indochina, but would permit Nixon to waive the appropriations cutoff if he deemed that necessary for the protection of U.S. troops.

A switch of that magnitude would shift the current balance, away from an outright ban on future spending.

Five Senate critics of Nixon's policy in Indochina said they had sent to newspapers throughout the nation a background paper challenging administration accounts of the Cambodian operation.

The paper was prepared by George McT. Kahin, director of the Southeast Asia program at Cornell University.

Sens. George McGovern, D-S.D., Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., Charles E. Goodell, R-N.Y., Alan Cranston, D-Calif., and Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, said they sent it out in response to an administration package of questions and answers on Cambodia. They said the administration sent out its material May 1, the day after Nixon's Cambodia speech.

"With the invasion of Cambodia," Kahin wrote, "the United States is expanding the battleground into an area as large as all South Vietnam."

"President Nixon has promised that all American forces will be pulled out of Cambodia by the end of June—but has yet refrained from saying that they will not be sent back again in July or succeeding months."

Spokesman Confident Of Cambodian Policy

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — A top White House official said Saturday Communist counterattacks in Cambodia were just harassing actions and both U.S. and South Vietnamese troops expect to pull out of the country on schedule about June 30.

It was conceded, however, that the timetable might slip by a few days as far as the South Vietnamese are concerned because of problems of destroying and removing vast stores of captured enemy supplies.

And, a warning sign was raised by the official that it would be foolhardy for the enemy to try to rebuild its border sanctuaries. While the United States has no intentions of further Cambodian operations, the official said, the South Vietnamese might return if new enemy buildups occur.

The latest assessment of the Cambodian situation came from a White House staff member who accompanied President Nixon here for a Florida weekend. He declined to be named or quoted directly.

In a show of antiwar sentiment on Armed Forces Day, a group of about 100 marchers staged a demonstration near the President's vacation home, carrying an American flag upside down. An irate 71-year-old woman neighbor, passing in a car, stopped and snatched it away from the parade leader.

Nixon, planning an excursion to a friend's island, Grand Cay in the Bahamas, was still at home when the protesters came, but he did not see them.

The new attacks by the North Vietnam and Viet Cong in Cambodia were described by the presidential adviser as aimed primarily at increasing American casualties, rather than regaining lost ground or recapturing supplies. He termed it simply harassment.

The enemy was pictured as having suffered a setback of 6 to 10 months in its ability to launch any major offensive operations in South Vietnam. Supplies captured in the sanctuary area were estimated at enough to equip 40 enemy battalions. And the official said it would take at least a year to build up a supply system of the type captured in Cambodia.

The captured arms, described as far exceeding expectations, were said to be posing a massive problem. Many might have to be blown up because of inability to move them out before the rainy season, the official said.

Cambodia may get some of them, mainly infantry weapons and ammunition to fit their rifles. But no decision has been made on that yet, the official reported. In any case, he added, they will get no sophisticated or complicated equipment that might require military advisers or instructors.

Situation Explosive U.S. Slums Worsen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The problems of the nation's cities — "our housing situation, the blight, the slums"—are more serious now than they have been, says Secretary George Romney of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

"As a matter of fact, I think the situation is becoming more explosive rather than less explosive," Romney said in an interview with The Associated Press.

The secretary, who was governor of Michigan at the time of the 1967 riot in Detroit, emphasized he did not mean that widespread rioting is more likely now. "Those who initiated the riots in earlier years have become somewhat sophisticated about them and they recognize that such widespread destruction boomerangs," he said.

Romney was interviewed shortly after he helped persuade President Nixon to keep Model Cities' funding intact.

Some questions and answers: Q. Are the nation's big city slums deepening?

A. I think our housing situation, the blight, the slums, represents a more serious problem now than they have at any previous point. I think we failed to turn the tide there yet.

Q. How do you account for this widespread belief you mentioned that the administration is insensitive to the problems of the city?

A. Someone writes it and they just pick it up and write it and voice it and talk about it and pretty soon most people are kind of that viewpoint.

Q. Don't you think it would be helpful if there was a coherent statement of the administration's urban policy?

A. Yes.

Q. What happened to that idea?

A. Well, there have been expressions, but they've been piecemeal and not complete and adequate, in my opinion. I think that's an area that should be dealt with more definitely and firmly and specifically.

Q. Has there been a conscious decision made to put greater emphasis on mobility, on putting people where the jobs are?

A. What I've been stressing as much as anything else is that to make it possible for every American family to live within a reasonable distance of their jobs and daily activities.

Q. Do you feel the President is as aware as, say you are, of the seriousness of the problems in the cities?

A. I think he is. In his State of the Union address this year he said, "The violent and decayed central cities of our great metropolitan complexes are the most conspicuous area of failure in American life." I don't think he could put it stronger than that.

Regiment Of Cong Hit Vital Stronghold

SAIGON (AP) — An estimated regiment of Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops surrounded and fought their way Saturday into Kompong Cham, Cambodia's third largest city.

The action threatened to trigger the biggest battle of the year.

About 45 miles to the east, other Communist command forces, apparently regrouping after initial retreats from their border base areas, stood off American forces trying to push into nine enemy cache sites occupied by the North Vietnamese 5th Division.

Amid these latest turns in the war the U.S. Command in Saigon announced withdrawals into the thousands of American forces from the sanctuary area of Eastern Cambodia. The command did not give any figure, but informed sources estimated the total at 5,000 to 6,000. From 9,000 to 10,000 remained beyond the border in the drive that began on May 1.

An Associated Press correspondent just outside Kompong Cham reported that the enemy forces of 800 to 1,000 men had encircled three Cambodian battalions and were fighting other government troops inside the city. Under battle conditions the enemy force was considered at regiment strength. There was no estimate of just how many government troops were involved.

Kompong Cham is a provincial capital, 74 miles by road and 50 by air from Phnom Penh, and the military headquarters for three surrounding provinces.

U.S.-made T28 bombers flown by Cambodian pilots pounded the enemy positions surrounding the town, and the Cambodian high command rushed reinforcements toward the city aboard commandeered civilian trucks and buses.

Cambodian officers renewed an earlier request for South Vietnamese ground troops to help break the siege. Officers at South Vietnamese Task Force Headquarters at Tay Ninh were considering the request Saturday night. Lt. Gen. Do Cao Tri, the task force commander, rejected the first request for ground forces Friday, but ordered fighter-bombers to fly support for the Cambodian defenders.

The city is 35 miles from the Vietnam border—beyond the 21.7-mile limit in which American forces are permitted to operate.

A South Vietnamese radio team inside Kompong Cham reported that a Cambodian battalion moved out of the city Saturday in an attempt to open the road to Phnom Penh in case the defenders were forced to withdraw. The Cambodian troops ran headlong into an enemy force and suffered two killed.

Grounds For Impeachment

One of the more curious aspects of the move to impeach Associate Justice William O. Douglas of the Supreme Court is the view of the chief mover as to what constitutes grounds for impeachment. Rep. Gerald R. Ford has put the matter this way: "An impeachment offense is whatever a majority of the House of Representatives considers it to be at a given moment in history."

This is patent nonsense, since the Constitution is specific as to what is an impeachable offense. Happily, Ford's misapprehension has been discussed in cogent terms by Simon H. Rifkind, a distinguished New York lawyer who was formerly a federal district judge. Rifkind, in a letter to the New York Times, made this salient point with regard to Ford's statement: "If that is so, it means that federal judges hold office at the pleasure of Congress."

He called this "a subversive notion," and added: "It is subversive of the independence of the judiciary; it is subversive of the separation of powers; it is subversive of the concept of checks and balances."

So there could be no misunderstanding of what he meant, Rifkind further asserted: "A court governed by such a principle of tenure is an intimidated court. No self-respecting man would accept judicial office under such a regime."

We accept this as an exact—a most disturbingly exact—appraisal of the danger to an independent judiciary posed by Ford's idea that "an impeachable offense is whatever a majority of the House of Representatives considers it to be at any given moment in history." The Constitution says that removal from office shall be "on impeachment for, and conviction of, treason, bribery, or other high crimes and misdemeanors." Conceivably Ford regards disagreement with himself as a high crime and misdemeanor. The nation does not yet seem to have come 'round to that view.

Bears In Jeopardy

If the grizzly bears on Alaska's North Slope had calendars and kept track of such things, they would mark May 15 as a red letter day—blood red. The two-week hunting season starts then.

Not this year, however. Thanks to hunters and oil exploration workers with itchy trigger fingers, the grizzlies are so endangered that the spring hunting season has been eliminated.

Illegal hunting has taken its toll of these gigantic and increasingly rare creatures. Some have also fallen to oil workers armed—in theory, at least—for protection against bears that like to poke around the exploration camp garbage dumps. Specialists fear that the species is threatened with extinction in the area.

The polar bears also are in serious trouble—in their case mainly because so-called sportsmen have found that they can come in by plane and take a white giant almost without risk. The standard operating procedure is for two planes to survey the pack ice together until a bear is sighted; then one lands and the other drives the doomed bear toward it. A trophy for the hunter is almost a sure thing under these circumstances—and, as noted, with minimal risk, since by the time the bear comes within range it is exhausted by its panicky flight across the ice.

Some might ask: When men are dying in combat, who can worry about bears? One answer is that respect for life is a seamless fabric. If man callously destroys animal species, he diminishes the beauty and wonder of his natural environment.

Nixon Like Senior Partner In Large Law Firm

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon runs the presidency as if he were senior partner of a large Manhattan law firm—which may help explain the recent cries that he is isolated. Complaints that Nixon is cut off, not only from public opinion but from the thinking of ranking members of his own administration as well, have mushroomed following disclosure last week of a letter to the President from Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel, who wrote:

"Finally, Mr. President, permit me to suggest that you consider meeting, on an individual and conversational basis, with members of your Cabinet. Perhaps through such conversations, we can gain greater insight into the problems confronting us all, and most important, into the solutions of these problems."

A close Nixon associate, who did not want to be quoted by name, cited the senior law partner analogy in an effort to explain why some Cabinet members apparently feel cut off from their chief.

It is very difficult, the source said, to convince clients that their cases will be handled effectively by juniors in a law firm—especially when the clients rarely see the senior partner, yet are called upon to pay senior partner fees.

Some Cabinet officers, he suggested, may find it difficult to adjust to a Nixon White House in which the decision-making process closely parallels that of a major law firm—with senior aides standing in the way of direct access to the President.

The isolation controversy has been fueled by public evidence that Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird had little advance knowledge of Nixon's plan to withdraw 150,000 U.S. troops from South Vietnam during the coming year.

Also, Secretary of State William P. Rogers, appearing before a House committee, voiced strenuous arguments against involvement of American troops in Cambodia just a week before Nixon ordered combat forces into that country.

Almost simultaneously, Nixon had to face Hickel's complaint that the administration "finds itself embracing a philosophy which appears to lack appropriate concern for the attitude of a great mass of Americans—our young people."

If that weren't enough, Hickel found Cabinet sympathizers for his other complaint that Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's attacks on the motives of youthful dissenters "can serve little purpose other than to further cement those attitudes to a solidarity impossible to penetrate with reason."

Rogers told a new conference he expressed general agreement with Hickel's views when the Interior secretary approached him last week, but did not give advance approval of the letter his Cabinet colleague subsequently sent to Nixon.

Sunday, George Romney, secretary of Housing and Urban Development, stated in New York, "I think that Secretary Hickel rendered a real service in the letter that he wrote, and I'm pleased that the President recognized that he had made a sound suggestion, and acted promptly."

Agnew did not need a direct presidential order to temper his public remarks, it developed. Although Nixon's chief of staff, H. R. Haldeman, quickly assured the vice president by telephone he would not be censored by the White House, Agnew read the headlines and, at his next speaking stop, threw away the toughest part of his prepared text—an attack on Vietnam dissenters.

On demonstration day, Agnew delivered another mild speech in Georgia and Secretary Robert H. Finch of Health, Education and Welfare, a long-time Nixon friend, who no longer belongs to the inner circle, contributed to the dialogue about the vice president.

Finch, responding to a question from a youthful protester, said Agnew's past rhetoric contributed to "heating up the climate" in which four Kent State University students were shot to death last week by Ohio National Guardsmen.

Historically, Cabinet officers have been almost as prone as vice presidents to feel discontent with their lot, but they usually kept their feelings to themselves while in office.

However, four of Nixon's 10 Cabinet members—Hickel, Rogers, Romney and Finch—have, to one degree or another indicated they have not been totally pleased about the administration's track record.

Troop Pullbacks Are Not Fiction

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA) — A number of men who should know better claim President Nixon's troop withdrawal program is a snare and delusion.

They quote headlines which state 350,000 American servicemen will be sent to Vietnam in the coming year. They put these headlines alongside the President's pledge to withdraw 150,000 men. They assert these figures point to an increase in troop strength, not a decrease. They study reports showing actual troop strength in Vietnam each week. They pounce when some weeks show an increase.

They note that two weeks after Nixon made his original Midway announcement on troop withdrawals, the number of American troops in Vietnam increased by 2,000.

What then is the truth? The maximum number of American troops in Vietnam was 543,400 This was in April, 1969.

When the President made his Midway announcement June 8, 1969, 537,500 men were on the spot. The actual strength rose to 539,500 on June 30, 1969.

The strength at monthly intervals follows:
June 8, 1969 537,500
June 30 539,500
July 31 536,000
August 31 509,600
September 25 511,500
October 30 495,200
November 27 479,500
December 25 475,300
January 29, 1970 472,500
February 26 467,350
March 26 448,600
April 15 425,500

Why then is Nixon putting in 350,000 men in the next 12 months when he's reducing forces by 150,000? And why the sometime increases in the weekly and monthly totals?

Tours in Vietnam are 12 months long. Therefore, men are rotated in at the rate of 900 to 1,000 a day or 28,000 to 30,000 a month. In the normal course of events, not taking account of units brought home in the withdrawals, men whose 12 months are up also come out at the rate of 900 to 1,000 a day or 28,000 to 30,000 a month.

These rotations thus add up to about 350,000 in and 350,000 out for the year ahead, not including troops withdrawing under the Vietnamization program.

So what Nixon is talking about is this: He will put in approximately 350,000 troops in the next 12 months and take out 500,000, for a net reduction of 150,000.

When you move troops in and out of a country at such a rapid pace and in such large numbers, there are bulges, as in automobile traffic every rush hour. Cars bunch up, thin out and bunch up again.

Because of the bunching effect and other factors (primarily military leave schedules) the number of men in Vietnam on any particular day or week can vary as much as 5,000 from the normal schedule. Note these sample weekly totals:

January 8, 1970	467,500
January 15	465,200
January 22	469,900
January 29	472,500
February 19	472,000
February 12	472,300
February 19	472,000
February 26	457,350
March 5	464,700

But by April 2, the total was down to 439,400. The bulges average out over any extended period.

The only honest answers, therefore, are achieved by looking at the number of men in Vietnam one day and then looking at the number six months later.

On June 8, 1969, there were 537,500 men in Vietnam. Six months later there were 475,200. On April 15, 1970, approximately ten months after the original announcement, there were 425,500. This is, then, 112,000 fewer troops on the spot.

Ann Landers:

Offers Aid But Not Marriage

Dear Ann Landers: I am 22 and had a very good job as a secretary in a college until I got pregnant. Due to the morning, afternoon and evening sickness I had to quit work. I am five months along and don't feel (or look) well enough to get another position.

When I told my boyfriend I was pregnant, he said he'd do anything to help—except marry me. Last night he announced that he intends to keep his word and help me financially, but he can prove in court that the baby belongs to someone else. I asked him how he came to such a ridiculous conclusion. He replied, "Because I am sterile."

I happen to know this is a dirty lie because I didn't even look at anyone else during the year we went together. If he is sterile, he got that way recently. In fact, I wouldn't put it past him to get himself sterilized to beat the paternity rap.

Shall I go to a lawyer and prove the child is his and make him pay? Or shall I trust him to keep his word? Court cases like this are usually a mess, especially if the guy decides to have three "friends" stand up for him and say they know firsthand the girl is a tramp. Please advise me.—Trouble in Streator

Dear Trouble: A lawyer cannot help you prove the child is his. In fact a doctor can't even do this. Blood tests can prove that a man did NOT father a child, but such tests cannot prove he did.

Your boyfriend sounds cuckoo. Whether or not he is a sterile cuckoo is another matter. I suggest you see a lawyer—not to file a paternity suit, but to get something down on paper regarding financial assistance from the heel.

Dear Ann Landers: You'll never print this but I have to write it anyway. The woman who married the homosexual and regretted it does not speak for every woman. I am married to a homosexual and I'm sure I made the right decision.

We have a lovely home, four children and fewer problems than most of our straight friends. We go with the nicest people in town and I can tell you for a fact that not one of these men is faithful to his wife. If your husband swings, what difference does it make if he's swinging with the boys or the girls? If a man has something going for him, his wife can count on being alone a few nights a week—and there isn't a cockeyed thing she can do about it.

Marriage means problems. This is normal. I admit my husband and I have had our share but our problems are no worse than anyone else's—just different.—Hayward, Calif.

Dear Hayward: They're different all right, and so are some of your ideas on marriage. Different from mine, for example. Thank you for writing.

Confidential to Countdown: If the best thing you can say about the girl is, "She has her weight under control now and she holds her liquor well," the future is not very promising. Ask yourself how she will look to you in five years if her weight gets out of control and she doesn't hold her liquor so well? The odds lean heavily in that direction and the possibilities for a poor marriage are endless.

Thoughts

She looks well to the ways of her household and does not eat the bread of idleness.—Proverbs 31:27.

Shun idleness. It is a rust that attaches itself to the most brilliant metals.—Voltaire, French philosopher.

Law For Today

Q. My former wife spent money indiscriminately when we were married and has continued to do so now that we're divorced. That would be her business—except she's still using my charge accounts—even though I've told her not to. What can I do to make sure she pays her own bills?

A. Send them to her! A spouse is liable for support payments and other expenses as set forth in the divorce decree. Otherwise, there is ordinarily no liability on the part of one former spouse for the bills incurred by the other former spouse in the aftermath of divorce. However, as a precaution, a person should notify his creditors and potential creditors that he will not honor any of his former spouse's bills. If necessary, he might close out any formerly shared accounts and re-establish them under his own name and address.

since," he said of Mangrove developers tore out the mangrove Point, a finger of land pushing groves and manicured the site out from the east side of Tampa into something suitable for picnicking about 15 miles south of nicking families.
Tampa.
Until two years ago, Mangrove Point was an impenetrable jungle of mangrove scrub, purchasable only from the sea-ard side. Here Bill built his shack—out of pieces of wood hat had been washed ashore, ones.
Bill's prowess as a fisherman has long been legendary in the area.
His friends—among them politicians, businessmen, tradesmen, shopkeepers and lawyers—gave him a refrigerator and television set and paid to have a power line run into the shack.
The shack is a happy place—a male place where Bill and his friends spend hours over coffee on bid and settle problems of the world.

With the arrival of tourists, Bill decided to expand his own world and make a profit in doing so.
He opened a little bait stand and earned about $10 a week—not much, but enough to keep him in coffee and other necessities.
But the county parks department says Bill may have to move to another part of the park, away from the picnic area. They point out that he's living on county property rent-free, and they criticize his bait business because any business in a public park must be let out forest is four feet or deeper.

Lulu Loves Her Bee Gee Husband

By ROGER DOUGHTY

NEW YORK (NEA) — There aren't too many healthy young women who could turn down the opportunity to spend the summer wandering around the country with Engelbert Humperdinck. Marie McDonald McLaughlin Lawrie did.

She'd rather spend two weeks in a bomb shelter with Maurice Gibb.

"It's not that I don't like Engel," Marie was saying the other day, plunking her nicely proportioned body into a chair in the St. Regis Hotel, "but I've had to turn him down twice. Besides, I've known him since he was Jerry Dorsey, so he really isn't a sex symbol or anything."

Is Maurice Gibb a sex symbol?

You wouldn't think it to look at him. Paul Newman he isn't. Clint Eastwood he'll never be. But a Bee Gee he is.

To be a Bee Gee you have to be one of the Brothers Gibbs, which Maurice is — along with Robin and Barry — The Bee Gees are an English group, like the Beatles, with a lot of hit records. Maurice had the good taste to marry Marie McDonald McLaughlin Lawrie, who is better known to the record-buying, movie-going and television public as Lulu, girl-type singer, actress and all-around nice looking lady.

"Being married to Maurice hasn't been easy," Lulu volunteered, "since I've had my career and he's had his, but we've got no complaints."

Lulu's old man is doing a single these days (The Bee Gees are battling these days), so he's on one side of the Atlantic and she's on the other.

Lulu is here, she says, to do a few things before making tracks for Canada, where she'll be a regular on the Andy Williams summer replacement series, called Andy Williams Presents Everything is Beautiful with Ray Stevens.

Since Ray is replacing Andy, you have to figure that Lulu is substituting for Andy's cookie-scrunching bear, which she thinks is O.K. She says, "I have a temper like a bear when I first get out of bed."

Lulu was all set to spend the summer touring with Engel when the TV thing came up and she figured it was better exposure, so goodbye Humperdinck.

She also figured that being in one place for awhile couldn't help but make life easier for Maurice, who makes it a rule not to stay away from Mrs. Gibb for more than 10 days at a stretch.

"We're both only human," Lulu explained, looking about as human as a girl can get, "and we know that absence doesn't make the heart grow fonder, so we never stay apart longer than that. If he can't get to me, I go to him. When Maurice married me he got about as married as a man can get and that's the way it's going to stay."

The Gibbs recently bought a house 50 miles from London which has more rooms than Lulu has been able to count. It also has a garden. While digging in same, Maurice came upon a bomb shelter which, as Lulu says, "was left over from the last war." Lulu's hubby cleaned it up, turned it into a recording studio and there it sits. If they ever get their schedules together, Mr. and Mrs.

Gibb may become the next great underground stars of our time. At worst, they're ready for World War III. Humperdinck will have to find his own shelter.

Taking time to get involved is a way of life for 17-year-old Linda Sullins of La Mesa, Calif., and that's why Linda has been chosen as the first winner in our Take Time to Get Involved search for teen-agers who have devoted their time to making things better in their communities.

In Linda's case, she has devoted her time to a lot of things. All worth-while.

In addition to being editor of her school paper at Helix High School, Linda is a head cheerleader, a student commissioner, was chosen as one of the 12 most outstanding members of her senior class (which consists of more than 600 students) and was one of five homecoming queen finalists.

But, as Clovis Hill, one of Linda's teachers and her nominator, writes, "It isn't merely the holding of these jobs that makes her outstanding, it's the way she performs them."

As editor of the paper, Linda organized special programs on pollution and conservation and put out an issue that emphasized the role of the law enforcement officer today.

As a junior, she earned the 100-hour service award for volunteer work as a Candy Stripper at Grossmont Hospital. A current interest is helping collect discarded items that will be adapted and used as playthings by the elementary school children who attend her church's Bible school.

Despite the tough schedule, Linda makes most of her clothing and earns her spending money through part-time work.

And, says teacher Hill, "She looks for other ways to serve without fanfare — a vase of flowers for a hospital patient, a word of encouragement for the saddened, a cheery greeting to the timid."

Know someone like Linda? If you do, don't keep it a secret. We'd like to honor her (or him) by telling her story in this space as the Youth Beat-Caravella Take Time to Get Involved search gets involved with you.

Watches are on the way to Linda Sullins and Clovis Hill and our special thanks to the editors of the San Diego Evening Tribune for passing along Mr. Hill's letter.

Woodstock Now A Major Film

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — "Woodstock." It was a major event. It has become a major film, one which seems destined to restore film documentaries to an important place in the cinema world.

The man who made "Woodstock" — the film — is Michael Wadleigh, a young, slim, soft-spoken, prophet-looking man. By all rights, he shouldn't even be in the movie business at all.

He grew up, he says, like an ordinary, run-of-the-mill kid. He was interested in women and cars. He knew how to study so he got good grades. He liked movies — John Wayne films mostly. He was a big frater-nity man at Ohio State.

He wanted to be a doctor. He'd done well in science at the college level and medicine seemed like a nice, respectable profession. He had his B.S. in physics and biochemistry, and he was promptly accepted at Columbia Medical School.

That was the mistake. New York changed him. So did the times. He was in his second year at medical school when the combination of the vital city and the explosive '60s got to him. John F. Kennedy was killed. He wept. The civil rights movement came along. He marched. The Students for a Democratic Society was formed. He believed.

"The traditional professions lost their appeal," he says. "I could see ahead, see ahead to what my whole life would be like. It was a depressing project."

So he pulled out. He regrets those two years in medical school. They were really lost on him and — this is his social conscience speaking — he regrets that he took up a place in medical school that somebody else could have used.

He had married a girl, a modern dancer, while in school. She was with him all the way as he searched. He found what he wanted in documentary films. For three years he worked for National Educational Television — "the largest and I think, best noncommercial filmmaker in the United States." Then he made commercials and some network and syndicated musical shows. But he was tired of seeing his things on television, on a small screen.

Feature films about real events, that's his bag. Cinema-verite, he calls it. "A personal kind of observation, a deliberate propaganda thesis film," he calls it.

"Woodstock" was his first big one. He and his crew took 120 hours of film. They edited it down to a three-hour film, but since there are so many sequences with multiple images, he estimates that it is really an eight-hour movie.

He and his group have a special editing machine, which they helped design. It is a console-type affair, not like the usual tiny screen Moviola, but with bigger screens. "We're in the 20th century," he says, "and we need 20th century equipment." The editing machine he uses cost $20,000 and he says everything he has made is going back into new equipment.

His degree in physics helps. He works on the technical side of filmmaking as much as he does on the rest of it. It's all part of the same thing. He says most studios are technically outmoded, so you have to do it yourself.

For a liberal — which he is — he exhibits one unilateral trait. He's antinuclear, or at least antinuclear-union.

"The film unions," he says, "are so unbelievably bad for filmmaking. The film unions are one of the worst in the whole labor movement. They have forced 99 per cent of filmmakers away from art and into craftsmanship."

"The unions limit the people I can work with and the procedures I can use. And the terrible nepotism within the union structure is just — well, unbelievable. And so I am not a union filmmaker."

What he is, he believes, is an honest filmmaker. Honesty is what he wants to show. It's possible, when you have a director who cares.

Soft Rock Roe Reacts

Tommy Roe

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — An old kind of music has a new name these days. —Bubble-gum music, they're calling it. It's really the soft kind of rock, the gentle type of folk, the refined sort of rhythm-and-blues.

Tommy Roe is one of its chief practitioners. He has been called the King of Bubble-Gum Music, or the High Priest of Bubble-Gum Music, or the Bubble-Gum Baron.

"This music," Roe says, "is designed to appeal specifically, and only, to teenagers."

Roe looks the part. He's a clean-cut, character, good. He's from Atlanta and his father was a real, old-fashioned country-music lover. He taught Tommy to play the guitar when the boy was knee high to a noodle.

"But when I was a teenager," Tommy says, "I came under the influence of Bill Haley and the Comets and then Elvis Presley, so I just naturally became interested in rock 'n' roll."

It has been a bumpy career for Roe. He says he has been "up three times and down twice." He's up now and planning to stay. To that glorious end, he's studying acting and hopes to move into the acting area with both of his highly-polished shoes.

"The average life expectancy of a teen-age idol," he says, "is one or two years. I've been on top now for four, so I guess there's a judgment day coming. That's why I want to get into acting."

The movie climate is changing. Everybody knows that, but the problem with the movie climate — as with the other kind of climate — is that it's awfully hard to predict tomorrow's weather today.

Two men who are taking a chance on what tomorrow may bring to films are Bernard (Barney) Girard and Reed Sherman. The former is a veteran director. The latter is a relatively young actor. What the latter lacks in credits he makes up with money; he comes from a wealthy Dayton, Ohio, family.

Anyhow, the two have teamed up and have formed Centennial Productions. They're planning to make important films.

"Exploitation pictures are out," Girard says. "They're not doing big business any more. Today, we have a chance to say something important in Girard, a writer as well as director, has written a screenplay called (tentatively) "There is a Name for Evil." He'll direct it and Sherman will have the second male lead.

Sherman says two years ago they would never have been able to do it. It's a suspense story that — to use the world's newest cliché — tells it like it is.

"Honesty is the key today," Girard says. "The movie industry didn't think 'They Shoot Horses, Don't They?' would appeal to the teen-agers, because it was set in the '30s, long before their time. But it was such an honest film that the kids love it."

Both Girard and Sherman feel that their careers have been frustrated and blocked by the industry. So the only way to get unfettered and unblocked is to start their own company. Fortunately, they're in a position to do just that.

At the annual awards luncheon of the Publicists' Guild, Richard Burton (and Elizabeth, looking prettier and slimmer than she has in years) and Jack Lemmon and Tony Quinn all spoke, but the show-stopper was Godfrey Cambridge, with a delightfully cheerful address.

One of his best remarks came when he was talking about some coming releases — "Myra Breckinridge," "The Boys in the Band" and "The Christine Jorgensen Story."

"At Oscar time next year," Cambridge said, "they'll have to have awards for Best Actor, Best Actress and Best Combination of the Last Two."

Pottery Program For The AAUW In Carrollton

The Carrollton Branch of the American Association of University Women held its May banquet at the United Methodist church in Greenfield Monday, May 11. About 55 members and guests attended. Mrs. James T. Day, Branch President, opened the meeting by having the members and guests introduce themselves.

Mrs. Sanford Hutchison, program development chairman, presented Mrs. John McQuillan, Jr., area chairman for cultural interests, who introduced the speaker, Don Heberling of Macomb.

Mr. Heberling, head of the art department in the Macomb school system, is a graduate of Western Illinois University at Macomb, and obtained his master's degree at Arizona State University, Tempe, Ariz. Mr. Heberling demonstrated the art of wheel throwing on the potter's wheel. While showing the various forms that can be thrown, slide projections of his past work were being flashed on the wall.

Mr. Heberling then demonstrated the Raku process which is a part of the Japanese tea ceremony. The Raku process is a very rapid production of small teacups formed, fired and glazed all within a period of an hour. This was done in the tea ceremony to symbolize the absolute purity of the container used in the ceremony.

Hostesses for the evening included Mrs. Day, Miss Wilhelmina Heber, Mrs. Hutchison and Mrs. Stuart Parsell.

Discontented Must Work Within Rules, Percy Tells Crowd

By JOHN B. MARTIN

United States Senator Charles H. Percy Friday night declared that "constructive discontent, working within the rules of the establishment, can and will find room in our society to make it work better."

Senator Percy was the featured speaker before a crowd of more than 400 business and professional leaders at the 49th annual meeting of the Jacksonville Area Chamber of Commerce.

Percy said he was not referring to the "distrusting, immature students bent on trying to wreck campuses across the nation." He said he was talking about the "constructively discontent" students who sincerely are seeking a way to "make our government and way of life work better."

The senior senator from Illinois pointed to Earth Day, April 22, in which thousands of students throughout the country worked to call attention to ecology and the "preservation of our environment."

Commenting that many of the young are "resentful," Percy said "these future citizens are upset when they see a government provide a subsidy to keep farmers from growing crops while 200,000 children in Illinois are suffering from malnutrition."

Percy said he was a member of the space committee, but felt a reduction from $6 billion to $3 billion in annual expenditures "still provides us with an adequate program."

"After all," he said, "this good green earth must be made better before we turn to outer space."

In a voice-vote of the dinner guests, most votes were cast according to the national average concerning giving 18-year-olds the right to vote, 57 per cent no; abolish the electoral college, 74 per cent yes; raise postage on "junk mail," an almost unanimous yes, plus opinions on six other profound issues of the day.

Percy said the government spends $527 million annually to subsidize so-called "junk mail."

He said he would introduce legislation to hike the postal rates on third-class mail, so that it would pay its own way.

Toastermaster for the evening was Robert D. Hamm, past president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Retiring President James C. Coultas presented the annual report of the chamber during Lahey said he had "no objections" to Holkenbrink being on the committee, scheduled to meet at 9 o'clock this morning in city hall.

Alderman Dale Brown will serve as chairman of the committee designed to thresh out differences between the city and the linemen.

Handyman Woes... Here's the Answer

Q.—I want to make a brick walkway in our backyard. I intended to lay them in a wet concrete base, but have been told that this can be done by using a dry mix. Can you tell me what the mixture is and how the job is done?

A.—Excellent results can be obtained with a dry mix unless the soil is clay or does not drain properly. The dry mix is made from one part of portland cement to five parts of sand. After digging out the path for the bricks, apply the dry mix to a height of two inches. Set the bricks into the dry base, standing them on edge and placing them about a half-inch apart. When the bricks are solidly in place, spread more dry mix into the joints. The easiest way to do this is to take a shovel of the mix and throw it onto the bricks, then another shovel in a different spot, and so on. When the entire pathway is covered, use a long-handled brush to spread the mix so that it falls into the joints.

Mary M. Conner Of Beardstown Dies Friday

BEARDSTOWN — Mrs. Margaret Conner, 48, died at 4 a.m. Friday at St. John's Hospital in Springfield.

She was born in Virginia August 5, 1921.

Surviving are her husband, John "Lefty" Conner; a son, John L. of Urbana; a daughter, Jan Vermillion of Beardstown; and her mother, Alta May Frank. There are three brothers, Albert, Garland and William and three sisters, Leta Shelton, Erma Deacon and Kathleen Conner, all of Beardstown.

She was preceded in death by her father and three brothers.

Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Sunday at the funeral home. Burial will be in the City cemetery.

President Andrew Johnson was about 17 years old when his wife taught him how to write.

Q.—I use one of the rooms in our house as a part-time office. I have three metal filing cabinets. The green paint on them looks kind of seedy and I would like to repaint. Will an ordinary paint be all right or must these cabinets have some kind of special paint?

A.—Any paint specified for use on metal will do. But before you paint, clean the cabinets thoroughly with a mild detergent and warm water. You may discover, as a friend did recently, that the poor appearance of the cabinets was caused by dirt and grime rather than a deterioration of the paint. In any case, the washing should be undertaken even if it develops that painting is required.

Q.—Is it necessary to clean all the paint from a brush if latex paint was used?

A.—Yes. Latex paint hardens on the bristles the same as oil paint does. The quicker you remove the latex paint from the brush with water, the easier it will be.

Russian Pilots May Influence Mideast Conflict

WASHINGTON (AP) — Introduction of Soviet fighter pilots into Egypt's air defenses is making a radical change in the strategy of conflict between Israel and the Arab states, in the judgment of high U.S. officials.

The developing new situation, they fear, is likely to increase hostilities in the Middle East and could lead into a sharp new confrontation between the Soviet Union and the United States.

The possibility that one result of growing peril in the area might be to increase the possibilities of peace negotiations is not ruled out here. But neither is it given a very high rating by the most knowledgeable authorities at this stage. Generally they assess the prospect as grim and a cause for anxiety.

Israel Foreign Minister Abba Eban is due here in midweek for talks with Secretary of State William P. Rogers and probably with President Nixon about Israel's pending request to buy 125 more jet fighter planes including 25 powerful Phantom jets.

Moderate Arab leaders from countries like Lebanon, Jordan and Saudi Arabia have been urging the Nixon administration to sell no more Phantoms to Israel. The United States sold 50 at the end of the Johnson administration and they still are being delivered.

Nixon has the Israeli request for 25 Phantoms and 100 Skyhawk jet fighters under consideration now. According to his own estimate the basic decision he has to make is whether the widened Soviet role in Egypt has substantially changed the balance of power against Israel.

The over-all total of Soviet military advisers is reported to have risen recently by about 2,000 to a total of 6,000 to 8,000.

IC Students Donate To Pathway School

A "Crusade for Children" members assist with Pathway campus fund-raising drive at School's swimming program. Besides social work, Ichthus student organizations, has raised $500 in contributions for Pathway School in Jacksonville.

The "Crusade for Children" was led by Allen Kuehn, senior from Peru, who is a past-president of A.P.O. and also Ichthus.

'The Selling Of The Presidents' Makes Selling Of McGuinness

By KAY BARTLETT
AP Newsfeatures Writer
OLD FLATBROOKVILLE,
N.J. (AP) — Joe McGuinness is tall, dark, talented, successful and charming. He's also very lucky.

A little over a year ago, McGuinness decided to write a book. He called it "The Selling of the President" and it became a runaway best-seller, over 175,000 copies in hard cover, over 25 weeks on the best seller list. Those in the book publishing business estimated he made up to $300,000 off the book. His first.

Joe McGuinness is 27 years old. At 21, McGuinness broke into the world of print at The Port Chester (N.Y.) Daily Item. On good days he got to paste up pictures of the local high school grads. Mom and Dad, living in Rye, N.Y., were his best audience. He earned $80 a week.

Five years later he was a celebrity, a guest on the David Frost, Dick Cavett, Merv Griffin or Johnny Carson TV shows. On good nights now, millions watched him.

"Some incredible things have happened since I wrote the book," says an awed McGuinness who looks even younger than 27 and carries albums of The Band and Janis Joplin everywhere he goes.

Like: He has been asked to run for Congress. A Broadway producer asked him to write a play. There was the published rumor that he would replace Chet Huntley. Movie companies wanted to buy the rights to his best seller.

Television producers asked if he would be interested in hosting a talk show. Rival publishers called and dangled six-figure advances, one for a book on the Chappaquiddick incident, another on the Yablonski murders. He was suddenly in demand as a speaker, at $1,500 a speech. An off-Broadway company wanted the rights to the best seller for a rock musical.

Hollywood wanted to know if he would be interested in coming out and writing movie scripts.

McGuinness has turned down nearly all the offers he received after publication.

"What this book has bought me is the first time I've had a chance to think in five years," says McGuinness. "It will also make up in advance for all the better books I hope to write that won't sell."

"I can afford a colossal failure now," he says. "The book I'm thinking of I think of as MY book. I'll let someone else worry about the commercialization."

He's living without newspapers, television or much radio. He says it saves his energy, the frustration and anger that go with reading about politics.

From the foothills of the Pocono Mountains, he reflects back on the promotion tour for the book, a tour that took him through 217 interviews from September until Thanksgiving.

He put him on display in Toronto, New York City, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Washington, Boston, Worcester, Mass., Chicago, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Cleveland back to Chicago, Detroit, back to New York, Cincinnati, Dayton, Atlanta, Austin, Houston, Minneapolis and St. Louis.

"It was debilitating. For eight weeks I was a talking machine. They'd plug me in in the morning and I'd stop at night."

His life hasn't changed much. He still loves all the cold milk and Guinness Stout he can drink. He's not living off the money he's made from the book. He's put himself on salary, although he admits he just awarded himself his first raise.

He's not the kind of celebrity people stop in the streets. But in the captivity of New York City elevators it has happened. To flattering and unflattering degrees.

"Hey, aren't you Joe McGuinness?" the man said, sticking out his hand. "The wife and I sure enjoyed you on television the other night and we'd like to have you out for dinner. Now here's my card and where can I reach you tonight?"

As McGuinness is more fond of telling it, the surprise encounters more often go like this: "You were on the Merv Griffin show last night, weren't you? Now what was it you did again? You were the acrobat, right?"

Most of the incidents in the wake of a best-seller amuse him. Particularly the lectures. He got so many requests he hired a lecture agent in addition to his literary agent.

"Sometimes in the middle of a speech I look out there and wonder who these people are. And why are they here? To hear me? When we used to go down to The Eden, a tavern next door to the Worcester newspaper, and I would start talking, Louis the bartender would tell me to shut up. Now I get $1,500 a speech. It's incredible."

McGuinness was most flattered by the invitation to run for Congress. It was also the most ironic. The point of McGuinness' book is the unholy means to which an ad man can capitalize on television techniques to sell a candidate.

He asked the two Democratic leaders who came out to his home in Swarthmore, Pa., why they had approached him. He hadn't even voted in three or four years and had never attended any local political meetings.

Straight-faced, they answered: "Because you've been on television so much."

Although Hollywood wanted to buy the rights to "The Selling of the President," McGuinness chose to allow an off-Broadway group to make a rock musical out of it. He'll take a tiny share of the profits.

"We'd make more money the other way but this will be more fun. I'd have to be lucky enough to have it become another 'Hair' to make any money out of it."

"There's been a lot of luck," says McGuinness. "But there's bound to be a certain amount of luck in everyone's life. It's a question of taking advantage. So many people I know have second-rate jobs and are afraid to take chances."

Not McGuinness. When the idea for the book came, he resigned as a columnist, the kind of job journalism graduates list as their ideal. The limb onto which he climbed was one offering a $10,000 advance to record the ad man's role in electing a president.

There were a number of things running against the idea. For one, everyone knew that Theodore White did the definitive pieces on the presidential elections.

Still, McGuinness had confidence in the idea.

"I would have been more surprised if it had been a total flop. But, in my wildest dreams, I hoped it would sell 100,000."

His editor expects the book will peak out at about 200,000 copies in hard cover. The paperback version has yet to be released.

McGuinness moved from city to city with the Nixon campaign. It was a distracting time indeed for a young man who had never tried a book before: a young man whose mother is amazed at how well he comes across on the talk shows.

"I always thought of Joey as such a shy boy," she remembers. "I can't believe he does so well on the shows."

Indeed, he seems that way, a young man whose best entree is his seeming shyness, who pastes on his boyish grin, who laughs at other people's jokes, jokes that aren't really funny.

But then, this is part of the Joe McGuinness who sat in on the Nixon meetings, who once crashed his way into Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's personal car, who as a reporter managed to attend those functions where the press was excluded.

He had no second thoughts once he started the book.

"I was scared," he admits, "but I couldn't go back. With the column you do four hours work in the morning and you've got something to show for it. I couldn't get used to the pace. It was also very depressing just to walk around the country week after week and talk about Nixon."

As McGuinness worked on the book, he also sold to national magazines. Now, as a best seller, that picture has changed, too. A top national magazine wants McGuinness to write a piece about his experiences as a newspaperman in Philadelphia. The choices of what he can and cannot do are so much wider now.

And the price is higher, too. Per word.

Pennsylvania has a total area of 45,333 square miles.

LET'S GO BIRDWATCHING

By Emma Mae Leonhard

A Thrilling Experience

Yes, we held our Morgan County Audubon club spring bird census on May 9 as planned in spite of the freakish weather. In next week's article we shall give you a comparatively full report of the day's happenings and the total findings. Today we are concentrating on the greatest event of the day, the discovery of a Scissor-tailed Flycatcher on the Beardstown-Chandlerville road, not far from the Y, one part of which leads to Virginia and the other to Chandlerville. It's human to want to communicate an exciting experience, and we think that we are human.

It's a Scissor-tailed Flycatcher

There were four census-takers in this group covering the Snicarte area. The lead car was a scout driven by its owner, Pat Ward, who was accompanied by Bob Randall. We were leisurely following this car. All of a sudden the scout veered and stopped. The two occupants leaped out just as suddenly, shouting something. We were astounded. What had gone wrong? Noting the look of happy excitement on their faces, we were relieved, but still more astounded. Then we heard the words: "It's a Scissor-tailed Flycatcher!" as the boys ran toward us. Naturally we thought that they were putting on an act for us—and a very realistic one, too—for who ever would expect to find such a bird here!

We All Saw It

However, we looked in the direction in which they were pointing; and we, too, saw the bird, a real Scissor-tailed Flycatcher. No one, even an amateur, can mistake any other bird for this beautiful one, pale pearly gray, with its extremely long scissor-like tail. Its sides and wing-linings reflected their lovely salmon-pink shades. There it sat just across the fence, so close that we really did not need our binoculars in order to identify it. As it sat there, it's "scissors" were folded; but its long and strikingly marked tail was clearly in evidence.

The Kingbird Cousins

Then two Kingbirds circled this most unexpected bird. They dropped down, one on either side of its strange cousin, curious and a bit disturbed. We have called it "a cousin" for they do belong to the same family; and the Scissor-tailed is naturally Kingbird-like in its habits even if not in its looks. Evidently the Kingbirds were asking their uninvited guest to leave, and it cooperated politely. Rising up from its perch, it maneuvered itself in front of us by the spreading and closing of its long streaming tail-feathers. Down into a nearby plowed field it sailed, remained a short time within our view, and then flew toward another extensive field until it was lost to our view. As it left, it seemed to enjoy showing off to us its skill in handling those trailing, long feather ribbons, almost like the tail of a kite. At least it succeeded in impressing us with

This development has focused new attention on the system Nixon has devised for obtaining information needed to make decisions.

Basically, the flow originates with two men, each supported by his own staff of experts: Dr. Henry A. Kissinger in the area embracing foreign policy and military matters, and former Seattle Lawyer John D. Ehrlichman, whose specialty is domestic affairs.

Another important White House adviser is Haldeman, a former Los Angeles advertising executive, who ranks higher on the organizational chart, if not in personal influence.

As he describes one of his major assignments, Haldeman must try to make certain the President receives the fullest possible range of practical options when a decision is impending.

Equally pertinent to the isolation question, Haldeman also is its bizarre effect in its graceful flight.

We Were All Thrilled

Who would have thought that we would have the opportunity to observe one of the most picturesque and graceful American birds here? All of our group, except Pat, had seen the Scissor-tailed Flycatcher by going to its natural habitat in the west and southwest parts of our nation, where it belongs and is common. Now it had come to us and gave Pat the thrill of adding another bird to his list. Actually, it gave all of us a thrill to be able to report to the assembled group that evening the drama furnished us by the Scissor-tailed Flycatcher.

responsible for deciding who gets to see the chief executive. Because a President faces far greater demands on his time than he can possibly meet, Haldeman explains he cannot automatically schedule an appointment because it would be a "good thing"—it has to be the "best thing" Nixon could spend time on at that moment.

Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Kissinger insist they always are available to Cabinet officers. (Ehrlichman says he was in North Carolina when Hickel tried to reach him about his "youth" complaint). That does not mean, however, the trio will arrange a quick presidential appointment for a Cabinet secretary.

Many decisions facing Nixon cut across departmental lines, they say, and the President simply cannot always spare the time for one man's argument.

The best alternative, they indicated, is for the involved officials to form "project groups," canvass and refine the alternatives, weed out those deemed impractical and then seek an appointment with Nixon.

The aim, as pictured by Nixon's top assistants, is to make certain the President ultimately receives a full range of choices while time is guarded against premature or inconclusive debate about policy questions that have not been adequately "staffed out" at a lower level. While this arrangement sounds fine in theory, it poses at least one practical problem.

What happens to a Walter Hickel who wants to chat with Nixon about such an abstract matter as the appropriate administration approach to restive young people?

Mrs. Elizabeth Ballou Garfield was the first mother of a president to witness the inauguration of her son.

Deadline For May 31 Social Copy

Because Memorial Day this year comes on Saturday, May 30, all copy to be published Sunday, May 31st on Social Pages must be at the Journal Courier news department no later than Tuesday, May 26th. Material received after that date will appear the following Sunday, June 7th.

To Be Honored Next Sunday

The Rev. R. M. Harris, B.D., D.D.

A reception honoring the Rev. and Mrs. R. M. Harris will be held Sunday afternoon, May 24, in Harris Hall, Trinity Church, Jacksonville, from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Father Harris has been Rector of Trinity from March 1946 to October 1955 and from April 1960 to July 1970. His many activities in the community and in the Diocese of Springfield have permitted him to become known far beyond the confines of his parish. Mrs. Harris has also been active in church and community. She has organized and developed a fine youth choir at Trinity and she has taught a special program in reading at Jacksonville High School for a number of years.

Trinity Episcopal's Tribute To Harrises

When the Rev. R. M. Harris and his wife first came to Trinity Church in March of 1946, Jacksonville was just beginning to recover from World War II. There were still shortages of all kinds: housing and furniture and appliances, automobiles and gasoline, even certain kinds of food and clothing. But the greatest shortage was manpower.

During the war many of the churches had suffered a decline in membership and attendance. The younger men had gone off to military service and a good many of the middle-aged had moved to the cities that offered employment in war-related industry. Their families had gone with them, whenever they could.

A look into the minute books shows that the Trinity Annual Parish Meeting of January 1943 was attended by only eleven persons, including the then Rector, the Rev. Rob Roy Hardin. Of the ten laymen present, seven were women. Still, canon law called for the election of an eleven-man Vestry. A motion was made that for the following year there be nine regular members and two alternates on the Vestry, and that four constitute a quorum. It was so ordered and the eleven men nominated and duly elected at that meeting included several in military service overseas. Both canon law and necessity were served.

In Early 40's, Vestry meetings seem to have been largely devoted to a discussion of ways to make ends meet. There is one motion approving "the use of the Parish Hall for a performance by a magician, a share of the proceeds of ticket sales to go . . . for summer Church activities." At the next regular meeting, receipt of $33, as the Church's share of the proceeds from the magic show is duly recorded.

But by the beginning of 1946, the men were coming home and a note of cautious optimism begins to creep into the minutes: a small surplus is mentioned, a new Rector has been called from Willmar, Minnesota, and the old Rectory is being refurbished. This was the moment when Rex and Dorothy Harris appeared on the scene and Trinity Church entered a period of revival and renewal, still in process.

From a couple dozen of the faithful that formed the nucleus of the parish when he came, the rolls of the communicants have grown to several hundred. From a somewhat uncertain budget of about $3000, in 1946, the operating budget of 1970 has increased to more than ten times that sum. From an almost non-existent Church School, a strong group of youngsters and teachers has been brought into being.

The sanctuary has been almost completely redone and much of beauty added to it, including some of the finest stained glass windows to be found in this part of the country. The old Parish Hall has been demolished and a handsome new one, appropriately named Harris Hall, has been erected and put to use by both the parish and the community. These are, of course, statistics, but they are the kind of statistics that don't happen without leadership.

Leadership

Members of Trinity are aware of the spiritual leadership Father Harris has given them. But he has also served under four Bishops of the Diocese of Springfield and he has been a trusted priest to each of them and a wise counsellor when called upon. He has served on a number of community boards and projects. He has been visiting priest to the patients of Jacksonville State Hospital, a member of the Jacksonville Ministerial Council, of the YMCA Board, and co-President of the Big Brother-Big Sister Organization.

He has also been chaplain to the Elks Club, and a sort of unofficial chaplain to the local police force. There are still members on the force who remember when he rode the squad cars on Friday and Saturday nights, acquainting himself with local problems of delinquency and reaching out effectively to some of the youngsters who were in trouble.

As Chief Runkel said recently, "He never turned them off with the pious kind of stuff they expected to hear from their elders." On all kinds of personal problems, he has counselled with hundreds of high school and college students.

His ministry in Jacksonville has not been without its disappointments and setbacks. The chief of these occurred in the Fall of 1955 when serious illness forced Father Harris to submit his resignation. But by the grace of God and his own determination to regain his full capability, after a period of several years of reduced activity in a gentler climate, he was able to return to Trinity Church in the Spring of 1960 and resume his usual rounds in parish and community. If anything, his absence strengthened the ties between priest and parish.

In all his work, Father Harris has been supported by his wife Dorothy, who has made special contributions of her own to church and community. Their friends will wish them both many years of fruitful retirement in Florida where they plan to live.

Ladies Golf at Jacksonville Country Club

Apologies to Ladies Golf members for dismal skies last Wednesday morning. Way back in March, your committee ordered sunshine and warm temperatures for opening day, May 13. However, "the best laid plans of mice and men...."

Notwithstanding the capriciousness of the day, a hardy group made the rounds after the scheduled luncheon, which was well attended. The fickle finger of fate made the following awards for tenaciousness and skill:

18-hole Class—low net, Fran Chumley; low putts, Verna Duerwer

9-hole Class—low net, Nicki Murphy; low putts, Margaret Bellatti.

In addition, Verna Duerwer earned a new golf ball for her fine chip-in shot.

Prospective members are especially encouraged to join us. If you are a novice golfer, and perhaps a little reluctant about your skill, come out anyway. This little reminder might help make up your mind.

"If you think you are beat —you are."

If you think you dare not —you don't.

If you'd like to win, but think that you can't,

It's almost a cinch that you won't.

Members are asked to make up their own foursomes for next Wednesday, May 20. If you need a partner, or desire additional information, please call any member of your golfing committee. Play for the day will be Bankers Handicap. Chairmen: Helen Little and Ruth Linebaugh.

Schoedsack Studio

Art Craft Fills Need Of Little Sisters

Saturday sessions at the Schoedsack Studio Shelves, located in the basement of the home of Miss Marguerita Schoedsack on King Court are happy times for the young girls who occupy their time in a fulfilling manner.

Miss Schoedsack, retired art supervisor in District 117, recently received the Governor's Citation from Gov. Ogilvie in Chicago at the 39th annual Governor's Conference on Youth. One of many attributes for the honor was her instructing young girls from the Big Brother, Big Sister Association in craft work on Saturdays at her Studio.

The pictures above were taken recently on the day one of the girls bid her friends goodbye as her family was moving to Kentucky. Peggy Troxell was so grateful for her time spent in the Studio she wrote this letter back to Jacksonville: Dear Big Brothers and Sisters, I am very glad you gave me this chance to go to art school. I have had very much fun and I have learned a lot. I also want to thank Miss Schoedsack for teaching me art. I hope to go on and learn more.

Sincerely, Peggy Troxell

Another "little sister," attending the art craft sessions, Tammy Mason, also wrote and a quote from her letter, "Besides giving me fun and a chance to make real things to be used by my family I am learning it takes patience to put all those little squares on a big table top. Thank you for the chance."

Nichols Park Ladies Golf

We had 13 girls out for golf this past Tuesday. The weather was most agreeable but believe that the lake and "casual waters" made their presence known on the score cards. Never a dull moment! That "kittie" has to have nourishment once in awhile.

Honors of the day went to Micky Goodrich, first low gross; Evelyn Cruzan, first low net; Ada Nelson, first low putts; Jean McDonald, second low gross; Lucille Eberhardt, second low net; and Edna Greenler, second low putts.

Edna Greenler had a chip in on No. 5 and Ada Nelson had a chip in on No. 6. Congratulations to the winners of the day!

We welcome Edna Greenler to the Ladies Golf group and we are happy to have Betty Taylor and Sandy Pasano back with us.

Come on out and enjoy a morning of fun and relaxation with us.

Invest In The Future

We live in a world which demands immediacy from all directions. "Now" is the order of the day. "Now" purchases, "now" entertainment, "now" clothing, "now" relationships and "now" solutions to all the problems of the world. What about the future? We're going to be living in it in all the tomorrows and should be looking forward to that time. The best investment in the future is home ownership. Owning your own home provides the emotional security and financial stability which will make the future a great place to live in and enjoy.

Home ownership is more than just an investment in the future. It is the best single investment, certainly the best hedge against inflation, available to any family. No other type of consumer durable goods increases in value over the years as does a home. And no other purchase enriches family life in the same way as does home ownership.

Despite its many advantages, acquiring a home of your own isn't easy in today's housing market. Tight money and an acute housing shortage make it more important than ever to avail yourself of the services of a Realtor. Now, during Realtor Week, and throughout the year, look for the Realtor emblem and be assured of experience, knowledge, service and personal integrity.

Travel Along with Independent travel is best suited for two or more people traveling together. Ideally, you should travel with your spouse or a close friend. Most children enjoy travel provided it is free of long, tiring journeys. Because family travel throws you together, requires that you all eat at the same time at the same table, it provides the togetherness you may miss at home. Should you travel alone? Many people do. If you make an effort to talk to people along the way, you will seldom feel lonely. With the exception of some Latin and Arabic countries, women may travel alone as freely as men. Vacation alone? — Why not try a guided tour booked through the well traveled agents at THRIFT TRAVEL, Dunlap Hotel Lobby, 245-7315. Arrangements made for tours anywhere in the world. The dinner table was centered with pink and white dogwood and lighted tapers.

Following dinner, the group adjourned to the second floor lounge. Secretary Ruth White and treasurer, Lola Johnson read climate. The sun brings conventions, polo players, realtors, entertainers, gamblers, and posh beauty pageants. Mangroves and crocodiles have gone from the scene—flamingos and coconuts have taken their place. A wall of hotels hides the ocean from view.

The Fontainebleau, undoubtedly the richest hotel, offers bowling lanes, putting greens, three pools, yacht docks, Roman baths, solariums, and everything else.

The beach is a callow spa, first boomed by arch-promotion 55 years ago. Many of its pioreports. A note of thanks was read by Esther Ingoglia, received from Mrs. Virginia Young Putzka, editor of the monthly sorority publication, the Beta Sigma Phi Torch. Mrs. Putzka has been editor for 36 years and is retiring. She has visited in this city many times for special meetings of Beta Sigma Phi. A congratulatory greeting signed by each member was sent to Mrs. Putzka.

Maureen Brennan reported visiting a former member, Alvahlee McCarthy of Arizona when they met at the Soroptimist convention in Texas recently.

Alpha Qu, program chairman introduced Miss Olaya from Bogota, Colombia, American Field Service, exchange student and senior at Jacksonville High School. She has made her home this school year with the Willard Cody family. Miss Olaya described her native country, its people and native customs. She displayed many beautiful articles and pictures. Mrs. Qu presented a gift to Miss Olaya in appreciation for the program.

Installation of officers for the ensuing year, 1970-71 followed. Miss Ina Stewart, president, read the installation.

Ingoglia, recording secretary; Margaret Fitzpatrick, treasurer; Bernita Dodson, corresponding secretary; Lecie Crawford social sponsor and Grace Davenport, honorary member.

Mrs. Sherwood Eddy opened her home on Monday evening, May 11, for a meeting of Gamma and Xi Alpha Upsilon chapters of Beta Sigma Phi. Xi Alpha president, Mary Margaret Withee, and LaVerne Buruff served as hostesses.

After a short business meeting presided over by Mrs. Withee, program chairman Miriam Robinson presented Mrs. Eddy, who was the speaker of the evening. She gave a fascinating talk on "remarkable women" of the 20th century.

The first woman she described was Margaret Sanger, pioneer in birth control and family planning techniques. Under her influence, both India and Japan adopted birth control laws. Next Mrs. Eddy discussed Indira

Gandhi, Nehru's daughter, who is prime minister of India. Although she faces tremendous problems in her country, India is the only one of the developing nations that has succeeded in operating as a democracy. The third subject of Mrs. Eddy's remarks was Golda Meier, prime minister of Israel, a Russian who was educated in the United States. She is a woman of great strength and determination who has held many important positions. Mrs. Eddy's last example of remarkable women was Angie Elizabeth Brooks of Liberia, who is president of the United Nations General Assembly. Although only in her 40s, she has been a judge and Undersecretary of State in Liberia. In concluding, Mrs. Eddy expressed her admiration for these four women and stated that there is much for which to thank them. They serve to inspire other women in times of trouble, such as is experienced in the world today.

Following the program, the hostesses served refreshments.

Soviet Literary Underground Active

By OTTO DOELLING
Associated Press Writer
FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — An ever-growing flood of manuscripts smuggled from the Soviet Union testifies to the vitality of a Russian literary underground, despite all efforts by the Communist regime to suppress it.

Out of the U.S.S.R. come novels, poems, political pamphlets, and tracts, some disclosing information which ordinarily would be available only to the Soviet secret police.

Much of this stream of dissidence finds its way to the Frankfurt office of Michel Slavinsky, a manuscript editor for the Russian-language publishing house called Posev-Sowing. The presses of Posev produced works by Nobel Prize winner Boris Pasternak before he received international acclaim, and by Alexander Solzhenitsyn, considered by many to be Russia's greatest living writer.

Slavinsky, French-born son of a czarist naval officer, says he expects that the Soviet crackdown on Solzhenitsyn, author of "Cancer Ward" and "The First Circle," to inspire an even greater output of underground works by defiant Russian writers.

As proof that the writers have joined battle with the regime Slavinsky points to the growing number of "samizdat"—self-publication—works being produced in the U.S.S.R. These reach wide audiences through a simple device. The originator of the pamphlet makes four copies to send to four friends. Each is asked to make four copies to send to four others, a process by which hundreds of thousands can be reached eventually.

Underground manuscripts get to the West in a number of ways. Some simply are mailed by way of neutral countries. Others are carried out by travelers. Some are on microfilm, some on sound tapes.

One underground periodical comes out at regular intervals and is considered by many the most important of its kind. Called "Chronicles of Current Events," it began publication two years and a dozen issues ago.

Since then Chronicles has brought to light many aspects of Soviet dissent. It has detailed Russian criticism of the invasion of Czechoslovakia. It carried material on the confinement of dissident writers to asylums. It even carried textual extracts of KGB interrogations, which caused some in the West to speculate that Chronicles had contacts within the secret police organization.

Posev publishes much of what Chronicles produces.

"Ten years ago, the Soviets tried to tell such writers they were working for nothing because no Soviet citizen would read what they wrote," says Slavinsky. "Five years ago, the officials said the stuff was laughable and called them outsiders and lunatics."

Now, he says, Soviet officials take the writers seriously and call them dangerous tools of the anti-Communist NTS—League of Russian Solidarity—which is based in West Germany. Slavinsky admits that he and some other Posev editors are NTS members, but says Posev is independent of it and all outside organizations.

Posev, he says, manages to earn enough to divert part of its money to printing digests of its two periodicals, a political monthly called Posev and a literary quarterly called Grani-Aspects. Both are mailed at random to the Soviet Union and Slavinsky says up to 70 per cent of the digests, copies numbering in the thousands, get through because postal employees cannot open all the mail. Posev also publishes books in Russian and German.

YOUR BIRTHDAY AND HOROSCOPE

SUNDAY, MAY 17 — Born today, you are intent upon becoming a personal success in life—but you give no great thought to material success. What matters to you is your spiritual development, which you feel you can best achieve through your personal relationships. For this reason your personal contacts with others are perhaps the most important aspect of your life. You believe that if you give of yourself fully to your relationships with others, if you help others where and when you can, you make great gains.

One who never puts off until tomorrow what you can accomplish today, you are inclined to take on more responsibilities than is really good for you. Sensitive to the moods of others, you are particularly interested in solving those problems which lead others to seek your advice. Early in your adult life you will no doubt gain a reputation as one who sees clearly the solutions others are blind to—a reputation which will please you.

Your career will be important to you in the sense that it will keep you in the necessities of life. More vital, however, will be what you do with your leisuretime, for it is then that your real personality will be able to free itself from the bonds which the working hours place around it. Hobbies become, therefore, extremely important to your development.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

Monday, May 18
TAURUS (April 21-May 21)—Your easy-going nature should take you a long way today toward the success you're after. Keep others informed of your ambitions.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21)—Make every effort to guide a younger co-worker in the way he should go to gain advancement in short order.

CANCER (June 22-July 23)—Take care that an unsympathetic attitude doesn't spoil your efforts to be friendly with one who can do you great service.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)—Your compassion for others can lead you into some difficulties this morning. Any trouble should be worth it, however, as others gain.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23)—Accept the guidance of one who knows more about your field than you do. You may be in for a pleasant surprise.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23)—An opportunity to travel may present itself this morning. Think things over carefully before accepting or rejecting it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)—Encourage younger family members to use their own minds in coming to decisions. Encourage them to be independent.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22)—If a woman, housekeeping may seem too confining today. If a man, you may yearn for a change of employment. Take care.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)—An emotional response to what is going on about you may be more beneficial to you today than a purely reasonable one.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19)—You have reason for optimism where your career is concerned. Advantages over another become obvious at this time.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 21)—Strive to attain personal satisfaction at the same time that you fulfill your responsibilities to purely business matters.

REITHER on Beardstown

By Virgil Reither

BEARDSTOWN — Three local corporations have pledged $90,000 toward the $600,000 goal set in a campaign to build a hospital complex here.

Robert Rankin announced the "kickoff" news as his campaign committee set out for the month-long effort.

Workers met Wednesday night and pledged a total of $45,000 as they mapped arrangements for their work in May.

The first batch of letters has been dispatched to prospective donors.

Citizens are being asked to make at least a third of their pledges available so that construction can start during 1970.

Schmitt Memorial hospital board of directors outlined a three phase program, the first part of which entails the building on of an intensive care regular hospital facility, to be followed by two other buildings for extensive care and building to house doctors and other personnel.

Original estimate for the program is $2.2 of which a million dollars would be in the form of a guaranteed revenue bond issue. A $600,000 grant and $600,000 in contributions from the area would round out the cost figure.

After being fined $50 and costs on charges of illegal transportation of liquor Everett Baker was remanded to the county jail by Circuit Judge Fred W. Reither in connection with theft of gasoline at the Critic Mills property here and for aiding in the escape from jail of another prisoner.

Baker's bail was fixed at $5000 which he did not furnish immediately.

Charles Levertton pleaded guilty to illegal possession of liquor and was fined $25 and costs, and on his guilty plea to stealing gasoline from a truck on Critic Mills property he was fined an additional $50 and costs.

A third party is sought in connection with the gasoline theft.

Prisoner Nabbed
Sheriff Carl Wubker said Thursday that one of two prisoners who escaped the Cass county jail in Virginia Tuesday had been taken into custody in Springfield.

Dale G. Kroening had been held in jail for burglary of the Mallard Inn here several months ago.

Loss Anticipated
Mayor Murray is anticipating a loss in tax revenue due to personal property and homestead exemptions, and says he is being very cautious on expenditures as a result.

Mr. Murray spoke before a Chamber of Commerce meeting here and reported the city had obtained $22,000 from the state sales tax, but is cautious about spending funds due to the anticipated loss of other sources of revenue.

One of the worst side effects of notrump is that the man with the disease always expects that his partner is suffering from it also. Hence, he goes out of his way to take his partner out of no-trump into his own suit.

Today's hand shows a sad result of this. There is nothing wrong with South's opening spade bid. He only has 11 high-card points but they represent three quick tricks. In addition his six-card trump suit includes the ten and nine to back up the ace and king so that he can rebid his suit happily.

North has 13 high-card points; 3-3 distribution and stoppers in all the suits. His two no-trump response is eminently correct.

We can't say the same for South's rebid to three spades. Not that we criticize it severely but rather that we would be inclined to raise our partner to three no-trump. We don't have a singleton, we don't have a secondary suit that we might want to ruff in dummy and we do have a hand that will probably take the same number of tricks at no-trump as at spades.

Furthermore, we have no reason to want the lead to come up to our hand. Give our partner king-jack-small in any suit and the lead to him may well produce a trick that a lead through him would not.

In any event, South's rebid to three spades didn't really hurt him because North went on to three no-trump. South should surely let him play there.

South was really punished at four spades. With East holding the king of clubs, he fell one short of his game contract. At three no-trump there were nine tricks in top cards.

Q—The bidding has been:

What do you do now?
A—Pass. Your partner isn't showing a tremendous hand; merely 15 to 17 high-card points. Game should be a cinch but there is no slam.

TODAY'S QUESTION
Instead of bidding three no-trump, your partner has bid three spades over your two clubs. What do you do now?

KAREN WINKELMAN OF MEREDOSIA TO ATTEND ART CAMP

MEREDOSIA — The Meredosia Junior Woman's club is sponsoring Miss Karen Winkelman to attend art camp at the Robert Allerton Park in Monticello during the week of July 12-18. The alternate is Betty Potter.

Miss Winkelman is a sophomore at Meredosia - Chambersburg high school, carried nine subjects with a semester average of 3.5, is accompanist for the high school chorus, and plays first clarinet in the band.

She won two superior ratings at state contest for clarinet solo and part in clarinet quartet. She also received honorable mention in the recent Town and Country Art Show in Jacksonville. She is a member of Trinity Lutheran church at Arenzville.

The Meredosia Village Board met May 4 with Trustees Dueterhaus, Cooley, Newman, May and Rausch, and Clerk Evans present.

After routine business, discussion of bids received on the land fill at the dump was heard. A motion was made that J. T. Viera be employed to build the dump land fill. A motion was made and carried that the annual audit by Cannell and Cannell be approved and filed with the State Auditor and Village file. The board also agreed to purchase a pick-up truck for the dog catcher from Delbert Cooley.

The newly elected officers of Meredosia - Chambersburg FFA for the 1970-71 year are president, Ron Brown; vice president, Don Staake; secretary, Don Wohlers; treasurer, Larry Wards; sentinel, Bob Spoon; parliamentarian, Eddie Dunmire; assistant reporter, Phil H. Epitaphs—Western Style

About the biggest thrill left for an old newspaper scribbler is to find some lost notes, notes that have been AWOL for a long time and presumed gone forever.

Back in March, 1963, I had correspondence with Donn J. Moyer of Cotati, Calif. He was the owner and manager of a small circus, and when he wasn't busy with it, he prowled through western cemeteries looking for strange, unusual and humorous epitaphs engraved on tombstones.

At that time I gave him some unusual epitaphs from this part of the world, and he sent me a sampling of those he had chanced upon.

The letter got lost and stayed that way for more than seven years. Printing some of them will fill up this column just dandy.

I particularly like one from Petaluma, California: He called Ed Smith a liar. And one from the famous Boot Hill cemetery at Tombstone, Arizona:

Here lies Lester Moore 4 stugs from a 44 No Les — No More.

Another from Petaluma, the arm-wrestling capitol of the world:

Frank Wilson. The Old Grouch.

From southern California: Here lies Elizabeth Mann.

Who lived an old maid and died an old Mann.

And on a gravestone dedicated to the memory of a dentist: Stranger! Approach this spot with gravity.

John Brown is filling his last cavity. Some husbands really thought up sharp and perhaps fitting epitaphs:

Here lies my wife, here let her lie Now she's at rest, and so am I.

Here lies my poor wife, without bed or blanket But dead as a doornail: God be thanked.

But others show wedded bliss: On the wife's stone — "I am waiting for you." A.D. 1867. On the husband's stone — "Here I am." A.D. 1889.

And from Nevada City cemetery: My beloved sleepeth. I could not wake him.

In St. Helena, Calif., a member of the famous Dan Rice Circus Co. died in 1860 and the simple epitaph reads: Goodbye, Joe.

And this one tells a sad story: Neglected by his doctor, Ill-treated by his nurse, His brother robbed his widow, Which made it all the worse, And here's a real Irishism, as they were called a hundred years or so ago.

Under this sod lies Johnny Round. Who was lost at sea and never found.

It was later in 1963 that the late Tommy Morrow of the Chicago Tribune found an epitaph he had been looking for for many years in southern Kentucky. He had heard about it years earlier; and whenever he went to Florida or returned, he always drove miles out of his way to look for the monument and spied into every old cemetery he could learn about in the vicinity. Finally he found it, in a hillside cemetery choked with blackberry briars.

I like this epitaph just fine, for it tells the complete story in a lively manner.

A Kentucky housewife was out with a double-barreled shotgun looking for squirrels when she found her husband bathing in the creek in rather unusual circumstances, and she gave him both barrels. The wife laid in jail for a few weeks, was acquitted of all charges and moved over the ridge to the next county and settled on a farm she had inherited from her father.

She and her two daughters became rather wealthy selling the coal rights to a mining company; and when she died a sharp tombstone salesman convinced the girls that they should put up a suitable marker in the memory of their father and the girls finally came up with this epitaph:

Maw loved Paw And Paw loved wimmen. Maw caught Paw In a-swimmin With two wimmen. HERE LIES PAW.

I'll mail this column to Mr. Moyer; maybe he still lives in Cotati, California.

Forestry Camp Enrollment Now Open

Illinois boys between 15 and 17 can get a first-hand look at problems in timber production and soil and water conservation this summer at the 19th annual Illinois Boys' Farm Forestry Camp August 2-8.

The camp is located on West Frankfort Lake in Franklin county, in the heart of southern Illinois forest region.

The week-long camp will give campers an opportunity to learn more about the practical applications of forestry to farming operations. The experience provides background for managing farm woodlands for lumber, Christmas tree plantations and wildlife protection areas.

Since the camp started in 1952, 969 boys representing 4-H, FFA, Boy Scouts, and church organizations have taken part in camp activities.

Morgan county extension adviser George Trull says that application forms for the 1970 camp are available at the Morgan County Extension office, East Morton Road, Telephone 243-2712. Leadership ability and experience with forestry projects at home or in school or club work will be considered in selecting 1970 campers. Applications are due before June 1.

The Illinois Technical Forestry association, a non-profit organization for the promotion of the intelligent use of forest and wood products, sponsors the camp each year. Financial support comes from wood-using and coal-producing industries, farm and conservation groups, and local organizations. In past years Morgan county boys have been sponsored by the Morgan County Soil and Water Conservation district and by the Jacksonville Kiwanis club.

Soybean Sales Export Trend Remains Good

There has been an unbroken upward trend in exports of U.S. soybeans and products since 1954 with the exception of just one year. Soybeans exported this year may total 375 million bushels and domestic crush may reach 700 million bushels.

Soybean demand has been strengthened this year by relatively small commercial carry-overs last fall here and abroad, rising domestic and foreign requirements for oil and meal, and a reduction in world supplies of competitive fish and peanut meals and sunflower, fish and peanut oils.

Nitrogen Loss Due To Weather Studied

Nitrogen losses caused by the recent wet weather will be small where anhydrous ammonia or ammonia fertilizer was applied a few days before the rainy period. But in ponded areas where the nitrogen was applied early enough to give it time to convert to nitrate or nitrite forms, the losses may be high.

Extension adviser George Trull reports that the extent of nitrogen losses depends on three factors: The time when the nitrogen was applied, the chemical form of the nitrogen and the amount of leaching and denitrification.

Nitrogen losses occur only through leaching and denitrification. And only the nitrate and nitrite forms of nitrogen can be lost through these processes. How quickly nitrogen converts to nitrate and nitrite forms depends on the time the nitrogen was applied, the form applied and the soil temperature.

On non-ponded areas of silt and clay loam soils, from 10 to 25 percent of the nitrate and nitrite nitrogen may not be lost. Where water stood for ten days or more, it is safe to assume that most of the nitrate and nitrite nitrogen has been lost. Farmers should remember, however, that only a part of the nitrogen which has been applied was in this form when the flooding occurred.

"If anhydrous ammonia was applied within ten days of the time of flooding, it would probably not pay to add additional nitrogen. However, if a relatively light application was made and it was applied before April 15, it would possibly pay to add an additional 60 to 80 pounds of nitrogen. This could be done before planting, if the corn is not yet planted, or side dressed later," Trull said.

"Farmers also need to remember that later planted corn responds much less to nitrogen than early planted corn, so the later we get our corn planted, the less it will be practical to apply."

Illinois Farm OUTLOOK

CLOSING CHICAGO BRINGS NEEDED CHANGES

The Chicago Stockyards closed its hog alleys Friday, but that world-famous livestock market will continue to handle cattle.

Many farmers have asked how closing the hog market at Chicago will affect prices elsewhere. Closing that market will have no measurable effect on the average prices received by farmers for hogs, but it will probably speed the collection and distribution of more and better information about prices at the other points of sale.

Rise of the Chicago Market Chicago became "hog butcher to the world" when most livestock was produced in small lots and shipped by rail. Chicago was the hub of the nation's rail system, strategically located between the corn-hog country and the big population centers of the East. At its peak, the Chicago market received more than 100 thousand hogs in a day.

Chicago gained its reputation as a price-making center not so much because of the cattle and hogs there, but as the headquarters for the big meat-packing companies. Buyers and sellers in Chicago made no bids or offers without first checking supply and demand in as many other places as possible. They also kept their Chicago prices closely related to daily and hourly developments elsewhere.

Decline of The Chicago Market The Chicago hog market has been shrinking in size and importance for more than 40 years. The coming of good highways and big, fast trucks permitted hogs to bypass Chicago on their way to the East. Furthermore, new and lower-cost packinghouses were built at many places in the principal hog-producing areas.

Trends today show the way of the future. As livestock production units get larger, buyers come to feedlots. As the product becomes more standardized, there is less of a need for the buyer to see the product he is buying. This is a general rule that applies not only to livestock, but to most other agricultural products and to most manufactured products as well.

People, Not Pigs. Make Prices A good principle to remember is that prices are made by sellers and buyers. They may be separated by many miles; neither one needs to be near any pigs or packinghouses. The important thing is for them to have a meeting of the minds. They can communicate by telephone or radio.

The best market is one in which there is only one price for a specified product at a given time. If some farmers sell for less than others, it is a poor market—whether that market is a central one such as Chicago, or a scattered one around a county, state, or nation.

Most livestock purchases are made, or directed, by men who are well-informed, full-time price specialists. The sellers of livestock—farmers or their representatives—should be equally well-informed, in order to get full value for their products.

BRIMFUL and running over

By JIM BRIM

We are getting those May flowers that the April showers promised us.

It is indeed a miracle the way the earth comes to life in all its beauty each spring. The spring flowers burst forth, produce their seed and begin to store food for next spring's growth through the heat of summer.

Editors Note: Mr. Brim generally writes his column on Tuesday of each week.

If the weather hasn't changed we should have a lot of corn in the ground by the time you read this. We always breathe a sigh of relief after its planted, but the battle has just begun.

We now hope and pray for enough rain—but not too much. We worry about soil insects, flying and crawling insects, diseases, hail storms, wind storms and various other things that may cause the disaster of a poor crop.

Again, that's where good management comes in. The good manager thinks ahead and has some plan for dealing with the various insects, etc., that may affect his crop.

Now you should... Watch the strawberries... Sniff the flowers... Pay someone a compliment... Read Romans 12:9-13... Declare war on dandelions in the lawn.

Plan activities for the children's vacation time. We are approaching the season for spraying. It may be good practice to warn your neighbor about your intention to spray. If there is drift toward his field that you couldn't control because of wind change, etc., he might want to move his cattle for a while.

Also, be especially careful of 2,4-D and similar weed sprays near soybeans, tomatoes, etc.

There aren't many hives of bees left but if there are some near you be sure you warn the owner before using a pesticide. It is always interesting to note what man can do to help nature along when he really wants to. For instance—we had enough increase in wild turkeys to have a short shooting season for them in some counties in Illinois this year.

If it goes in one ear and out the mouth—it's gossip.

THIS WEEK AT DIXON SPRINGS

No-Til Sweet Corn Planted Sweet corn was no-til planted on May 5 in headed-out rye at Dixon Springs. The rye was broadcast seeded to simulate airplane seeding last fall in chopped sweet corn stalks. The rye furnished a winter cover and now will provide a summer mulch for the growing sweet corn. Herbicides were used to kill the rye and control weeds.

No-til corn planted last year in the same plots in a killed grass seed yielded well, comparable to yields on a plowed and well prepared seedbed.

Horticulturist Bill Courter was pleased with the yields and corn quality last year. However, he said that the no-til sweet corn took a week longer to reach harvest maturity than corn from conventional plantings. But, Courter said, "The no-til corn can often be planted a week or more earlier when soils are too wet for normal tillage operations." Courter said the plantings at Dixon Springs are experimental.

Sprayed For Alfalfa Weevil It has been nearly two weeks since spraying for alfalfa weevil at Dixon Springs with a mixture of malathion and methoxychlor.

The label on the spray bottle claims that the chemical controls aphids, leafhoppers, spittlebugs, and clover leaf weevil as well as the alfalfa weevil.

Problem In Replanting Early planted no-til corn can be a problem today. Because of the wet weather, the stand is thin and spotted, and thus becomes a weed in the corn to be replanted.

At Dixon Springs, we face this problem. Bob Webb, superintendent, proposes to work it out this way:

1. Delay replanting until last—proceed with other plantings first.

2. In replanting, attempt to plant in original rows.

3. Use paraquat to control the scattered corn from the original planting.

4. If weed and grass kill is good from original spraying, then spray paraquat in a ten-inch band over the row only. This will reduce paraquat per acre rates from a quart to one-third of a quart.

Delay the respraying because paraquat is not a residual killer, only a contact killer. Spraying the old corn stand too early may kill only the top growth missing the corn growing point which has not yet emerged from the soil surface.

Forestry Camp Students Visit Ninety-three forestry camp students from Southern Illinois University visited Dixon Springs last week. They came to learn about pine spacing and thin-

Time To Enter Spring Lamb Carcass Show

The fourth annual Spring Lamb Carcass show June 14 will feature something for everyone interested in sheep production. The show will be held at the state fairgrounds, Springfield.

Extension adviser George Trull reminds producers that the deadline for entering in the carcass show will be Monday, May 25. Entry blanks and copies of rules and regulations are available at the county Extension office, East Morton Road, Jacksonville.

The June 14 program will feature a noon-time lamb barbecue, which is being billed as a family affair. Afternoon demonstrations and talks will give everyone a chance to learn more about modern sheep production.

Meat specialists will put on a carcass cutting and evaluation demonstration. Jim Meno, Dorset breeder from Carbondale, will discuss purebred ram certification; and Mel Fink and Bennie Doane, University of Illinois sheep specialists, will present a workshop for sheepmen on line lamb evaluation.

The on-foot show is scheduled for 3:30 p.m., with Mel Fink as judge. The lambs will be slaughtered at Dubuque, Iowa, June 15 for on-rail judging.

Tree, Shrub Plantings Can Reduce Noise

An area surrounded by trees and shrubs looks peaceful and quiet. Research now under way indicates that trees and shrubs can help to make the area sound that way, too.

Properly located tree and shrub barriers can reduce noise as much as 50 percent, reports Ted Curtin, University of Illinois Extension forester. And when grass is added, the combined plantings used to divide or surround large hard-surfaced areas can cut sound levels by 65 percent.

These are some of the key findings from a three-year study soon to be completed at the University of Nebraska College of Engineering with funds provided by the U.S. Department of Agriculture Forest Service.

Noiser Every Day Curtin points out that excessive noise as a form of environmental pollution is drawing increasing public attention. The use of trees and shrubs as traffic noise screens has been proposed to combat that pollution. But little scientific evidence has been developed concerning the method's effectiveness.

When the project is completed late this year, scientists expect to have some of the answers. Information gathered in the study will guide decisions on design and placement of tree barriers to stop noise.

Preliminary findings indicate that tree species do not differ greatly in their ability to reduce traffic noise levels. But evergreen varieties are best for year-round noise screening.

The findings show that tree height is an important factor. The barrier effect is greater with tall trees and with wide belts of trees that diffuse and absorb sound over a larger area. Significant sound reduction can be achieved from narrow, dense tree belts—but the wider belts are generally more effective.

Surface Affects Levels The scientists also noted that softness or hardness of the surface over which sound travels also greatly affects noise levels. Soft surfaces such as lawns with tree or shrub borders, absorb sound. Hard surfaces, such as highways and parking lots, reflect and may even amplify sound.

Other findings include: —Distances of 75 feet or more should be available for planting between the noise sources and the area to be protected.

—Dense barriers formed by planting several rows of trees closely together are most effective.

—Noise screens should be placed as close as safely possible to the noise sources.

To reach these preliminary conclusions, the scientists followed these four steps:

1. Traffic noises produced by trucks, passenger cars and buses, were recorded and used as the sound source for experiments.

2. Tree belts of varying widths, heights and types were selected at quiet sites on flat terrain.

3. Recorded traffic sounds were played back at their recorded sound levels through the trees and measured at varying distances behind the belts.

4. The procedure was repeated at another location where no trees were growing, and the measured sound, with and without intervening foliage, was used to draw conclusions on the ability of trees to reduce sound levels.

Wheat Fields Small; Record Yields Seen

Wheat production in Illinois is forecast at 41 million bushels.

This is 15 percent smaller than the 1969 crop and 17 percent smaller than 1968 production. Yield is forecast at 40.0 bushels per acre—up three bushels from 1969 and up four bushels from 1968. Acreage intended for harvest is estimated at 1,028,000 acres—down 21 percent from 1969 and 26 percent from 1968.

Above normal temperatures and above normal precipitation resulted in excellent growth of wheat during April. As of May 1, the stage of development ranged from prejoint to joint in the south and was mostly prejoint in the north slightly ahead of last year.

The largest wheat acreage ever harvested in Illinois was in 1920, just 50 years ago. This wheat was planted in the fall of 1919 near the close of World War I, which shot the price up to $2.60 per bushel to the farmer. The government guaranteed price for the 1920 crop was $2.50 a bushel and the farmers ning, moisture studies in pines, and hardwood management from University of Illinois foresters, Bob Nelson and Bob Young.

Mulching Pine Seedlings Foresters at Dixon Springs are busy mulching pine seedlings with black plastic sheets and black, white, and clear latex spray paints. They want to learn how well each mulch controls weeds, conserves moisture, and warms the soil in new tree plantings.

harvested wheat from 2,745,000 acres.

The yield, however, was 15.1 bushels per acre, giving a production of 41,415,000 bushels, which is just about the projected figure for this season.

SOYBEAN PRODUCTION IN ASTRONOMICAL FIGURES

World production of soybeans harvested in 1969 totaled 1.5 billion bushels as estimated by F.A.S., U.S.D.A. Top 5 were: United States, 117 million bushels; Mainland China, 244 million bushels; Brazil, 35 million bushels; U.S.S.R., 21 million bushels; and Indonesia, 16 million bushels.

4-H To Issue New Plat Book

The Morgan county plat book and resident directory is now in the process of being revised and up-dated and will be available later this year. The new edition again is being sponsored by the Morgan County 4-H Club Federation, as a community service and a money-making project.

Morgan County Extension adviser George Trull suggests that anyone who knows of errors in previous editions or knows of changes in ownership during the last three years notify the Cooperative Extension office on East Morton Road.

Rockford Map Co. of Rockford, Ill., will publish the new book.

Must Destroy Excess Wheat By June 1

Early certification by Morgan county farmers in the voluntary farm programs will mean earlier program payments, according to R. Gloyd Leavell, chairman of the Morgan County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) committee.

Certification of wheat must be made by the disposition date of June 1 for all farms participating in the wheat program in all counties south of and including an east and west line of counties, Pike, Scott, Sangamon, Christian, Moultrie, Douglas and Edgar. The disposition date for counties north of the above line is June 15.

Excess wheat or wheat on diverted acres must be reported as destroyed by June 1. George Trull, Morgan County Extension advisor, reports that wheat can be clipped now, and it will not produce grain.

Having the wheat on the farm premeasured does not exempt the producer from reporting to the ASCS office. Many changes occur between the time a farm is staked and the reporting time. When certification is made earlier than the disposition date of June 1, the farm is subject to spot check and disposition of a crop to get into compliance is not permitted.

Leavell cautioned farmers against guesswork. He advised that they must know their exact acreage of feed grain and wheat. They must also know the acreage diverted from wheat and feed grains, and that they have met their farms' conserving requirements.

When a farmer certifies his compliance with the farm program provisions, the Morgan county ASCS office begins processing the papers so that he will receive full payment as soon as possible after July 1. Target date for completion of 1970 farm program payments is July and August.

Plan 'Selected' Farm Surveys In Illinois

Many Illinois farmers will be asked to participate in special crop and livestock surveys to be conducted by the Illinois Cooperative Crop Reporting service in late May and early June. Some of the farmers will be personally interviewed, while others will be contacted by mail or telephone.

These surveys are part of a nationwide effort to provide information needed to estimate planted acreage, livestock numbers, and farm employment.

State Agricultural Statistician Robert H. Moats said that the locally hired enumerators who will interview farmers are given several days training. They use aerial photographs and county road maps to find the scientifically selected farm units for the survey and must do a thorough and accurate job.

Accuracy of estimates based on these surveys is very important. For this reason, Moats urges all farm operators selected in these surveys to supply the information requested. Estimates based on these surveys will be published in June and early July.

LOCAL MEN ATTEND TRAINING SCHOOL

Bob Moffet and Fred Bergschneider of Moffet Farm Supply, East Morton Road, have returned from a two-day dealer training school conducted by the Wieland-Davco Corp. at its home office at Kawkawlin, Mich.

The local farm supply firm is a franchised dealer of the Michigan-based manufacturer of industrial, commercial and farm steel buildings.

Business — Market Wrapup

Market Gains 17 After Sharp Drop

By JOHN HENRY
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices over the past week fell sharply but then made a strong comeback.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks jumped 17.43 to 702.22. The Dow had not gained as much since April 8, 1968 when it closed 18.61 points ahead.

The surge followed Thursday's performance when the Dow average skidded to 684.79 after having fallen below the 700 level on Wednesday for the first time in nearly seven years.

The drop came after a more gradual slide that saw the paper value of common stocks traded on the New York Stock Exchange decline by $139 billion from $692 billion in the period from December, 1968 to end of April.

Investors, confronted with the biggest market losses since World War II, were completely demoralized, many analysts said.

Some brokers were equally pessimistic. "My customers keep asking me when the sell-off is going to end," said one. "I tell them the truth. I tell them I don't know."

Many factors appeared to contribute to the demoralization gripping the financial community. These included the U.S. involvement in Cambodia, the prospect of intensified conflict in the Middle East and continued unrest among the nation's youth.

On the bright side, the government reported Monday that wholesale prices in April held stable for the first time in 18 months. The drop was due mainly to a decline in food prices.

Not so encouraging to inflation fighters was the news that United States Steel Corp., the industry leader, was increasing its basic steel price by 4.7 percent. The products involved account for at least 30 per cent of total industry shipments and are used in such consumer products as automobiles and refrigerators.

Bethlehem, the industry's second largest producer, had announced a similar increase last month.

Industry observers believed that, in view of the moves by the two biggest companies, the rest of the industry would follow.

The Commerce Department reported Tuesday that business inventories in March rose slightly in February while sales declined. The slump in sales was the sharpest decline—$1.07 billion—since a $1.24 billion drop last November.

Sales in the first quarter declined $1.6 billion from the fourth-quarter level last year.

(the first decline since the first quarter of 1967).

The automobile industry reported a 22.9 per cent decline in car sales on a daily rate basis in the first 10 days of May. This represented the sharpest drop in daily sales for a reporting period since October, 1967, when there was a Ford Motor Co. strike.

The government indicated during the past week it was opposed to import quotas despite a rising tide of support for protectionism. Carl J. Gilbert, President Nixon's chief trade official, said the administration disapproved of legislated import quotas on textiles and shoes.

PITTSFIELD — The main office of the Farmers Home Administration is being moved to Pittsfield from Quincy according to Kenneth A. Stark, Illinois State FHA director.

Stark said that the move is being made because more than half of the FHA business of the two offices is in the Pike county area and the move to Pittsfield will be of greater service to rural people. The Quincy FHA office will still be maintained in the post office building on North Eighth street.

Roy G.T. Turner is the new FHA director in Pittsfield, replacing W. W. Fennel, who recently resigned after 30 years with FHA. Fennel spent only one day of the week in Pittsfield when the main office was in Quincy, which means that Turner and his family will live in Pittsfield and keep the Pittsfield office open nearly full time.

Fair Labor Standards Act Information

Q. How long must I keep records for purposes of the Fair Labor Standards Act?

A. Records of required information must be kept for three years. Some supplementary items like time cards, piecework tickets, and order and shipping records need be kept only two years. Microfilm copies are generally acceptable.

Q. I run a small business but do not pay overtime. When one of my employees works more than 40 hours in a week, I let them take off a similar number of hours at some later date. Is there anything wrong with this?

A. This is not permissible under the Act. Overtime compensation earned in a particular workweek must be paid on the regular payday for the period in which the workweek ends.

Q. I pay the bookkeeper in my factory $125 per week. During tax return time, she works 45 or 50 hours a week but most of the time she puts in only 35 to 40 hours a week. Must I pay her overtime in those weeks she works over 40 when her annual salary far exceeds the minimum wage?

A. Yes. The Act requires payment of time and one half the regular rate of pay for hours over 40 per week regardless of whether the salary exceeds the minimum wage. The act takes a single workweek as its standard and does not permit averaging of hours over two or more weeks.

Q. The workers in my printing shop are covered under the Fair Labor Standards Act. I pay them more than the minimum wage. Do I still have to display a poster?

A. Yes. Covered establishments must display a Fair Labor Standards Act poster which employees can readily see.

This poster can be obtained free from any Wage and Hour office.

Q. I'd like to file a minimum wage complaint with the local Wage and Hour office, but I don't want my boss to find out. What should I do?

A. Write U.S. Department of Labor, Wage and Hour and Public Contracts Division, 718 Meyers Building, 101 South Fifth St., Springfield, Ill. 62701. Or call Omar A. Bittman, Compliance Officer, 1137 West State, 245-4025. All information is kept in strict confidence. Also, your employer is prohibited by law from firing you for filing a complaint.

Woolworth Sales Up Over 1969

Lester A. Burcham, chairman of the board of the F. W. Woolworth Co., reported that sales for March and for the first 13 weeks of 1970 were 28.7 and 19.2 per cent respectively over 1969 sales for the same period.

Woolworth had sales of $500 million for the first 13 weeks of this year and $1.9 million for the four weeks in March. The number of stores in the chain was 3,740 in March of this year versus 3,680 last year at the same time.

Wheat Off Two Cents Per Bushel

By ED DE MOCH
AP Business Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — A government report, indicating that the 1970 winter wheat crop probably will exceed last year's production, influenced selling of wheat futures that resulted in a loss of more than 2 cents the past week on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Other grain futures closed on a generally weak tone. Soybeans new crop options were weak but nearby were strong at the close.

When trade ended on Friday, wheat futures were 7 1/2 to 2 1/2 cents a bushel lower. May 1.48 3/4; corn was 1 3/4 lower to 1 cent; higher. May 1.29 3/4; oats were 1/2 lower to 3/4 higher. May 67 1/2; rye was 1 1/2 lower to 3/4 higher. May 1.06 1/2, and soybeans were 1/2 lower to 2 1/4 higher. May 2.68 1/2.

The government report on wheat also tended to influence further liquidation after its issuance on Tuesday, but the nearby May option turned strong later in the week on buying linked to thinning Chicago wheat stocks.

All May options expire at noon Tuesday, and the desire of longs to take profits and sell out tended to weaken this option in most commodity futures. But it did not last long.

Corn futures attracted some buying on the protracted rain and severe weather conditions in some areas of central United States, but weakened under profit-taking late in the week.

Oats trade was light and prices showed little movement. Rye also held to a rather tight range, although the May contract led others in selling pressure.

Nearby soybeans moved sharply ahead at week's end under commercial buying and short-covering.

RESTAURANT TOO POPULAR, SELLS ALL ITS FOOD

MT. STERLING — An unusual situation occurred this month at Mt. Sterling's Bates restaurant. The popular eatery was completely redecorated and opened to the public on Sunday, May 10. Customers responded so well the owner, Charles Bates, had to close early because he ran out of food.

Paneling, new carpet, indirect lighting, new tables and chairs are all included in the extensive decorating. Also a new room has been added to the area, with corresponding decorating. Sliding doors separate the two areas. The new room is located where Faugust drugs formerly operated. A third room is available for club meetings, private gatherings, etc.

Taxpayers Ask IRS

Q—If I buy a new tractor for my farm, can I still take the investment credit on it?

A—No. The investment credit provision was generally repealed by the Tax Reform Act of 1969. It does not apply to most equipment acquired after April 18, 1969.

Q—I'm buying a house this summer. What records should I keep?

A—Your records should show the purchase price of the house, and any improvements you make to it that would affect your cost basis. This information will be necessary to determine whether you have any gain to report when it comes time to sell.

Each year you should keep a record of the property taxes and interest paid on mortgage loans. These can be deducted on your income tax return if you itemize.

More information can be found in Publication 530, Tax Information on Deductions for Homeowners. Send a post card to your IRS district office for a free copy.

Q—I'm moving in a few weeks and my refund hasn't come. What should I do if it doesn't come before I move?

A—Give your postmaster your new address so the refund can be forwarded to you. This will assure your refund gets to you promptly.

Thousands of refund checks are held up each year because taxpayers have moved without leaving forwarding addresses. When a check has been returned to IRS by the Post Office, it is held until the taxpayer either writes IRS of files another return giving his new address. The refund is then sent to the taxpayer or applied to any tax he may then owe.

Q—Is there any change in the Social Security tax rate on household employees?

A—The rate is still 4.8 per cent for the employee and 4.8 per cent for the employer making a combined rate of 9.6 per cent. Anyone who paid a household employee $50 or more in total cash wages during January, February and March should pay 9.6 per cent of the total wages to IRS using Form 942, Employee's Quarterly Tax Return for Household Employees.

The deadline for paying these taxes is April 30.

Q—I was 65 last month. Isn't my boss supposed to stop taking Social Security out of my pay?

A—No. employers are required to withhold Social Security taxes on the first $7,000 in wages paid each employee. The age of the employee does not change this requirement.

Q—Should I keep the records I used to make out my 1969 tax return?

A—Yes, you should keep these records and other information used to prepare your return. If your return is audited, these records will help substantiate items on your tax return.

Q—I sent in my tax return without a W-2 from a part-time job. Should I send it in now?

A—If you included the income and amount of tax withheld from the Form W-2 on the income tax return you filed, send the W-2 to the IRS for association with your return.

However, if you did not include the wage and tax amounts from the W-2 on your return, then you should file Form 1040X. Amended U.S. Individual Income Tax Return. Fill out this form completely according to the instructions and send it with the W-2 to the Internal Revenue Service Center serving your district. Copies of Form 1040X and instructions are available at local IRS offices.

Q—I just put in a retirement plan for myself and the three people I employ in my business. If I take on some summer help, do I have to put them in the retirement plan too?

A—No. part-time and summer employees usually do not have to be included in a self-employed retirement plan.

Additional details on these plans may be found in IRS Publication 560, Retirement Plans for Self-Employed Individuals. Send a post card to your local IRS office for a free copy.

WILLIAMS HOPES ONE STREAK ENDS

Billy Williams is something of a 'streak' man if you care to check the record books, or just ask him. The Chicago Cubs' sweet-swinging outfielder has had a career highlighted by streaks, good and bad, and has high hopes at least one streak will be ended this season.

Williams will probably be best remembered, when he hangs up the spikes, for an endurance streak that likely will never be equaled again.

THROUGH SATURDAY, Williams had appeared in 1,013 consecutive games for the Cubs, fourth best of all time and by 31 games the best ever in the National League. The father of four daughters discussed his streak in the Cub dugout before Friday's game in Busch Stadium.

"I was extremely proud to break Stan Musial's record (895 games) last year, and equally pleased when I hit the 1,000 mark this season, but I have changed my mind on that streak recently.

"After I played in the 1,000th game early this year in Atlanta, I watched highlights of the game on television afterward and it wasn't even mentioned. They talked about a home run Henry Aaron hit and Rico Carty extending his hitting streak. That started me thinking how really unimportant a record like this is."

Williams, who has not missed a game since Sept. 21 of the 1963 campaign, isn't giving much thought as to how far he would like to extend his consecutive game streak, far away from Lou Gehrig's 3,120 mark, one of baseball's most unbelievable records.

"I CERTAINLY don't intend to shoot for 2,000 straight," says Williams, who is also noted for having one of the most picture-perfect swings in all of baseball. "I want to play baseball 20 years and I know I can't do that playing every game. Sitting out a game here and there might mean another three or four years in my career. That would mean much more to me, because I just love this game."

For what its worth, Williams feels his streak will stand the test of time. "I was fortunate in that I was relatively free of injuries, which is mostly luck, and I was fortunate enough to hit left-handed pitching."

"I don't think anyone will ever play 1,000 consecutive games again. Too many managers go along with platooning, and the schedule isn't conducive to streaks such as this."

ANOTHER STREAK that has followed Williams through his already distinguished career is his batting. As a rule the 32-year-old Whistler, Alabama native is either red hot or ice cold at the plate. Williams opened the year with an 0-19 slump, hit everything thrown his way during a blazing home stand, then dipped to an 0-15 drop.

Discussing his streak tendencies, Williams says, "It is unexplainable. I never have been able to explain it. In the case this year, the weather had a lot to do with it. Our first two series were away and played in cold weather. Then we got home, the weather was nice and everything I hit was one a line. I know I shouldn't press when I'm going badly, but no one can help but try a little harder, especially when no one on the team is hitting. Then you try to pick everyone up. By the way, I wasn't a bit worried when I was 0-19," Williams joked, explaining that slump was the longest he could ever recall.

WILLIAMS CAME to the Cub organization straight out of high school in 1956 and moved up through the system rapidly. He played 18 games with the Cubs in 1959 and 12 in 1960 before moving up to stay. Williams was NL Rookie of the Year in 1961 and has been a mainstay since. Entering this campaign Williams packed a fine .291 lifetime batting average with 249 career homers.

About the time Williams became an established major league star, the Cubs became of age as a team and he has one more streak in mind. "The only streak I'm concerned about now is ending the streak with a pennant in Chicago. Its been 25 years and that is the uppermost thought in my mind now — helping the Cubs win the National League pennant. If I can help that by sitting out a few games, I will be more than willing to do it. I would like to think that I can help more with my bat and glove, however."

Williams, who already is in the top ten in nine Cub all-time offensive departments, including third in homers, is the type player and person that make baseball a great game and one who seems to have the right "streaks" in mind.

RECORD-BREAKER: MacMurray's slugging outfielder Glen Stinson shows the form he used Saturday afternoon to rewrite the Highlander record books. Stinson blasted a pair of home runs and two singles to finish as the top home run hitter, RBI man and total hits leader as MacMurray closed out the season with a doubleheader loss to Northeastern Illinois State.

Stinson Sets Marks As Clan Drops Pair

Northeastern Illinois State of Chicago swept a doubleheader from MacMurray, 6-5 in nine innings and 11-1, despite a record-breaking day by the Clan's Glen Stinson, Saturday afternoon on the Highlander diamond.

Stinson, a senior, etched his name into the MacMurray record books in five places when the day was through as he finished a distinguished career with the Highlanders. Northeast captured the first game on Glen Stinson's double and Rich Rizzo's misjudged fly ball that went for a triple, then rode Tom Kanen's five-hit pitching to the romp in the nightcap.

Stinson slammed a pair of home runs and a single in the first game, including a three-run roundtripper in the bottom of the seventh to send the contest into extra innings. Stinson added a single in the nightcap. Stinson is now first in career hits with 91, first in home runs with 11, first in doubles with 24, second in runs batted in with 62 and tied for fourth in triples with four.

The Jacksonville Pony and Colt Leagues will conduct tryouts this afternoon, with boys from 13-16 invited to tryout for the existing teams. The Pony League (for boys 13-14 by Aug. 1) will have two tryout sessions this afternoon at the JHS athletic field, with 14-year-olds trying out at 1:30 and 13-year-olds at 3:30. Another tryout at the same place at 5:30 Monday will be staged for boys unable to attend Sunday.

The newly-formed league will have at least six teams, with the teams to be drafted immediately following Monday's tryout. The league is scheduled to open June 3 and have two games each Wednesday, Friday and Saturday night at Nichols Park.

Players trying out are asked to bring a parents consent slip to the tryouts. The two Jacksonville teams entered in the Lincoln Land Colt League (15-16 years old) will hold their tryouts today at 1:00 at Nichols Park. The drafting will be held immediately following the tryouts.

Tryouts will be held rain or shine, with any boy in the Jacksonville area eligible to tryout for one of the two teams. Any boy wanting to play but unable to make Sunday's tryouts should contact Gary Watts.

The Jacksonville Lions Club and Freeness Brothers will sponsor the two teams, but money is still needed for other projects, including the operation of the District Tournament here the last week in July.

Unser Earns Pole During Indy Trials

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Favorite Al Unser wheeled his Colt-Ford into the pole position for the 54th 500-mile race May 30 at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway in a rain-abbreviated time trials Saturday.

The Albuquerque, N.M., veteran will share the front, three-car row in the 33-car field with the track record for a four-cylinder car, and A. J. Foyt Jr., who qualified for his Indianapolis start and a possible record fourth victory.

A crowd estimated upward of 150,000 saw the three front-runners come this close to matching speeds in the one car-at-a-time trials.

Unser, who missed last year's 500 with a broken leg, drove a Colt-Ford built by former Indianapolis winner Parnelli Jones and George Bignotti of Torrance, Calif.

Rutherford, a six-year veteran of the 500, had the best car of his Indianapolis career in an Eagle-Offenhauser.

Cubs End Scoreless Skein, Tip Cards 3-2

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Two-out doubles by Cleo James and pitcher Ken Holtzman in the fifth inning ended Chicago's scoreless streak at 22 innings and the Cubs went on to defeat the St. Louis Cardinals, 3-2 Saturday.

The fifth inning run snapped a scoreless deadlock and Jim Hickman's two run double in the eighth enabled the Cubs to withstand a ninth inning St. Louis rally.

The Cubs, beaten 4-0 by New York Wednesday on Gary Gentry's one hit and nipped 1-0 by the Cards Friday night, managed only one hit until the fifth.

Flood Vs Baseball Battle This Week

NEW YORK (AP) — Curt Flood vs. Baseball.

That's the way the battle lines are drawn for Tuesday's opening of the trial in which Flood, former outfielder for the St. Louis Cardinals, will challenge the sport's reserve system and attempt to prove that baseball is a monopoly operating in restraint of trade.

Flood's suit will be heard here in Federal Court before Judge Irving "Ben" Cooper. But it is likely to wind up in a higher court, possibly the U.S. Supreme Court, before it is finally resolved and all the repercussions known.

At issue is what is popularly known as the reserve clause—actually a set of rules—that binds a player to the team that signs him until he is traded, sold or released with or without his knowledge and approval. Flood's case is both important—and unique—because it will be the first in which the merits of the reserve system will be argued. There have been past suits which challenged the rules but they wound up dealing with the issue of the court's jurisdiction.

Judge Cooper already has ruled that "the trial must encompass the factual issues raised respecting the reserve system, hailed as a blessing by proponents, condemned as destructive by antagonists."

The antagonists in this case are Flood, the plaintiff; his attorneys, including former U.S.

Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg, now a candidate for governor in New York, and the Major League Players Association headed by Marvin Miller.

The proponents in this case are the defendants—Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, the American and National league presidents, the 24 major league clubs and the defendants' attorneys, Mark F. Hughes, representing the majors, and Paul Porter,

Piasa Birds Claim Title In District

STAUNTON — Rich Bohannon's clutch single in the top of the seventh inning lifted Piasa Southwestern to a 2-1 victory over Jerseyville and the championship of the Jerseyville District Tournament Saturday morning.

The game was moved to Staunton because of wet grounds at Jerseyville. Southwestern, now 5-12, will face the winner of Monday's Port-Virginia game that decides the Port District, in the Jacksonville High school Regional Wednesday afternoon.

Dave Hartman reached on a passed ball while striking out to open the Southwestern seventh, and moved on to second on Jim Rathgeb's sacrifice before Bohannon singled.

Rathgeb, a sophomore who hurled a perfect game against Northwestern in the first game of the district, scattered four hits, fanned five and did not issue a walk. Tom Purcell whiffed nine, walked five and allowed only three hits for the losers, who bowed out at 8-5.

representing the commissioner. It is considered likely that various members of the baseball community, players and management, will appear during the trial, and it is considered "highly unlikely" by as knowledgeable a person as Miller that the entire trial won't be played out the full route.

Commissioner Kuhn has declined comment but at least one baseball official has said: "Baseball will fight this case to the end. There will be no compromise. We welcome the opportunity to prove the game's legality in the courts."

The stage was set when Flood was traded by St. Louis to the Philadelphia Phillies last season. Upset, he asked Kuhn for permission to negotiate for himself as a free agent, but the request was denied—and the suit ensued.

Local Driver Wins Feature At Speedway

Don Carter of Hillsboro and Jack Wagghoff of Jacksonville walked off with the top prizes in Saturday's opening night of auto racing at the Jacksonville Speedway.

Carter, after battling Bob Stanton and Joe Ross throughout the 25-lap feature, swept the semi-late model feature, while Wagghoff claimed the crown in the hobo feature, with Jacksonville drivers sweeping the top three places. Carter also posted fast time in qualifying.

A good-sized crowd was on hand for the opening night. The regular program of semi-late models and hobo class races will be in store next Saturday night.

Koosman Blanks Phillies, 6-0, On Four-Hitter

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jerry Koosman scattered four hits in hurling the New York Mets past the skidding Philadelphia Phillies 6-0 Saturday night for their third consecutive shutout victory.

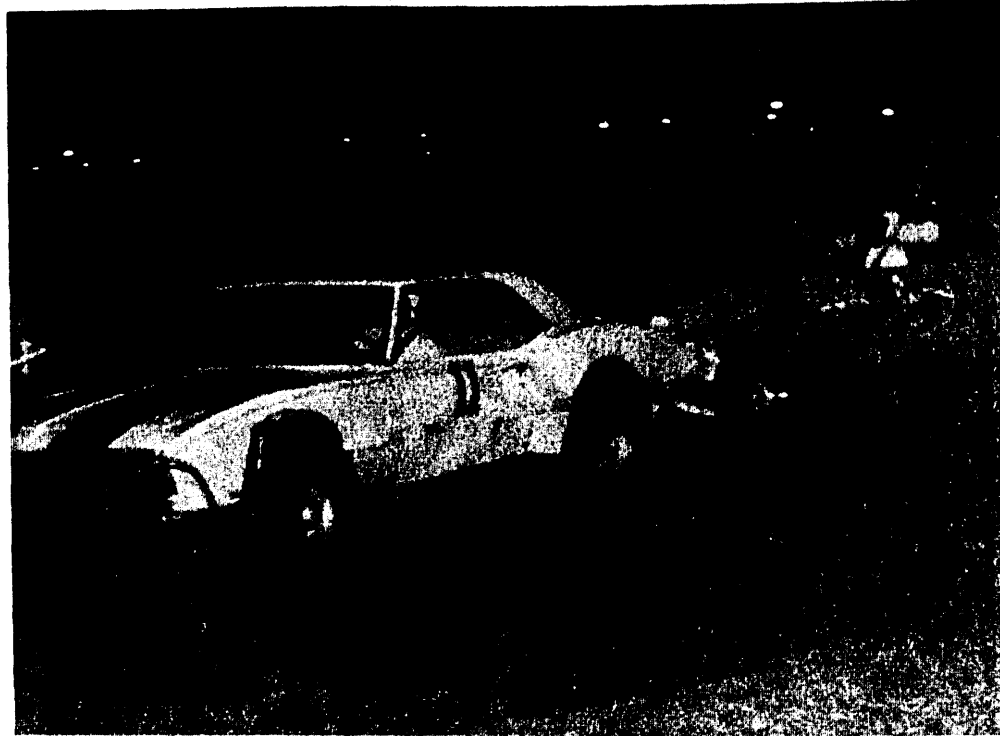

Koosman, following successive one-hitters by teammates Gary Gentry and Tom Seaver, breezed to his first complete game of the season, striking out 10 and pinning the Phils with their ninth straight loss.

The Mets gave him all the support he needed in the first inning when Tommie Agee and Bud Harrelson stroked singles, pulled a double steal and scored on Ron Swoboda's single off loser Grant Jackson.

Doubles by Harrelson, Swoboda and Joe Foy produced two more runs in the third.

Banks: Patient One

CHICAGO (AP) — Elderly statesman, co-captain, inspirational leader, garbage sweeper, grounds keeper and philosopher. All of these things and more is Ernie Banks.

Banks, the 39-year-old ageless heart of the Chicago Cubs hit his 500th home run last Tuesday against the Atlanta Braves.

Banks became the ninth man to reach the coveted plateau and with the same swing he also drove in his 1,600th run to become the 12th man in baseball annals to turn the trick.

When Banks hit his homer the Cubs trailed 2-1. They trailed throughout the game although Ol' Ernie also drove in a run with a sacrifice fly in the seventh. Then his teammates, realizing Ernie wanted No. 500 to go along with a victory, rallied to the cause, and the Cubs won 4-3.

Then the media stepped in. Radio interviews, television interviews, tape interviews, newspaper interviews.

Ernie put up with them all. The Patient Man refused no one. More than an hour later, he started the long trip to the Cub dressing room.

Banks stopped and signed autographs. Then he grabbed a broom from one of the members of the cleanup crew and helped sweep empty beer cups and peanut shells into a corner.

On the field he grabbed the hose from a member of the ground crew and sprinkled the home plate area.

Finally he was back in the dressing room. Most of his teammates were gone. Unlike most super stars who rush to leave after such an ordeal, Banks sat back to enjoy his great moment with four lingering members of the press.

"Oh, I'll call my wife and tell her to get the kids ready and we'll all go out and have a nice quiet dinner somewhere," said Banks.

"It wasn't until 1957 or 1958 I began to loosen up," said

Banks, a $25,000 bargain picked up by the Cubs from the Kansas City Monarchs in 1953.

"Yes, I was once worried about my career reaching an end. That was in 1963 when I ran into eye trouble. Mr. Wrigley (Cub owner P.K. Wrigley) had me come back from St. Louis to have my eyes examined. I started then to think I might be reaching the end of the line.

"But things worked out. In 1966 I didn't hit my weight in spring training and got off to a bad start. Then during the All-Star break I went up to Wisconsin with some friends and the family and relaxed. I got loose and finished strong," added Banks.

In 1966 Cub Manager Leo Durocher was convinced Banks was through as a player and started maneuvering to get a 500th home run.

"Hell, I retired him four times that season," said Leo. "Sure I was wrong. But how do you manage an institution?"

There were more troubles in 1967 but Ernie took a bit of advice from an old friend. "Stan Musial told me that when you get older you have to hit to the opposite field," related Banks. "It was tough to do for a guy who has always pulled the ball but it certainly helped a lot.

"The future: I've always been a regular and I'll go out a regular. I'd like to play 20 years. That means three more years. Can I do it? I'll try.

"Hey, it's early yet, let's go out and play another game," grinned Banks.

That was nearly five hours after Banks had slugged his 500th home run.

"Texas will be the third most populous state by 1975, and the only other major league team here is the National League's Houston Astros."

If he and others were to succeed in 1971, Turnpike Stadium in Arlington is where games would be played, according to Vandergriff. It lies on the turnpike between Dallas and Fort Worth, now seats 11,000 and is being expanded this summer to 25,000.

Subsequent expansion to more than 50,000, says Vandergriff, would not be difficult.

Vandergriff was one of the Dallas-Fort Worth contingent in Oakland, Calif., in January trying to land the Seattle Pilots.

He also says he was in touch with the Cleveland ownership that held the team before present owner Vernon Stouffer, a wealthy restaurant and frozen food businessman. He has had no contact with Stouffer, he admits, and he would be just as happy to get the Chicago White Sox.

"Our stadium is right near the 'Six Flags Over Texas' park, which is a kind of Disneyland of Texas," he comments, "and we picture a major league team and the Six Flags as an attractive twosome."

Tom Mercer is another Fort Worth Texan looking for a major league team for the area, along with Dallas multimillionaire Lamar Hunt.

Mercer is a trucking executive and beer distributor. He and Hunt own the Dallas-Fort Worth Spurs, a minor league team that has a working agreement with the Baltimore Orioles. The Spurs play at Arlington.

"We tried everything to get the Pilots," Mercer says. "The lawsuit by the city of Seattle and the delay scared us off. We'd be interested in having Cleveland any year."

Mercer says no active negotiations are in progress with any team at this time, but adds: "I think some American League owners feel this would be a good area."

Mercer knows Gabe Paul well. Paul is president and treasurer of the Indians, a title given to him when he was crudely bumped from the general manager's job in favor of Alvin Dark, who also manages the Indians on the field.

One knowledgeable source, Fort Worth Press sports editor Jim Browder, says that the team mentioned most often in Dallas-Fort Worth is Cleveland.

So there is no doubt that the Indians would be welcomed there. Sports-minded Texans must travel to Houston, some 245 miles away, to see major league baseball.

The short drive down the pike to Arlington, says money men like Hunt, Mercer and Vandergriff, would be much more appealing.

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (NEA) — Peter Lowry, All-American soccer player for the University of Maryland last season, was telling about a current player comforting his wounds in a local pub recently. The soccer player was disturbed by some slashing and commotion outside. He poked his head out the door, saw students and policemen in confrontation and decided to help quell things by offering a neaby cop a drink.

The policeman clubbed him over the head and dragged the poor gentleman off.

"Other than that," said Lowry, "I don't know many more athletes involved in the demonstration....

"And you know why? It's my opinion, but most college athletes have a locker-room mentality. They feel that any-suit, even remotely intellectual, is pussy, like playing the violin. They have a virility and a masculinity hangup."

Lowry, 30, is now a graduate assistant in Intellectual History at the university. A native of Glasgow, Scotland, he came here seven years ago and is now an American citizen. Besides making All-American last season, he was honored by Atlantic Coast Conference as a scholar-athlete. This year, besides grading blue books, he has been "busted" twice in campus protests.

At his desk, Lowry's thick-blondish head was bent over a New York newspaper article with the headline, "Athletes Joining Campus Protest." The story discussed cancellation of some eastern college sporting events, primarily in crew and track, to protest the widening U.S. military involvement in Southeast Asia and the deaths of four students during a demonstration at Kent State.

"Well," said Lowry, with a soft burr, looking up, "the role of the athlete on campus is changing subtly, and very slowly. College athletes have sense."

"Few athletes are in the intellectual circles of academia. Most are in something like physical education, a haven for athletes. And that degree is worth so little you can't get into law school with it. In general, athletes don't get involved with ideas. There is a reliance on purely physical or material things. They don't have the sensitivity for the world around them."

"And they don't ask the question, 'Why?' as, say, students in Arts and Science do. You see, the coach always makes the decisions for them. You never question the coach. Sports is a training ground for authoritarianism. And, of course, to have a winning team, that must be so. You can't have 11 guys talking at once in a football huddle."

"Also, most of them are on scholarship to play, and so are in a sort of contract with the college. And some, like those big football players, know that if they don't follow the rules they'll probably be sent back to the coal mines of Pennsylvania."

"But American sports are geared to winning, as opposed to European sports where artistry in athletics is valued. American soccer players, for example, are notorious for going through the wall to win. If they have to. But you never see one practicing a move like stopping the ball in mid-air on his foot."

"This all gets back to the tremendous incentive to 'go-go-go.' The spirit thing, and Manifest Destiny. America's whole history has been a sort of mission. It's part of the American psyche to get more: Spread westward, get Hawaii, get the Orient, get the moon. I think Americans are still struggling to assert their masculinity, and it's reflected in their sports."

"Athletes could do a lot on campus, because they're always in the spotlight. And the whole football team marching on the administration building would have more impact than 5,000 students doing the same thing."

"Athletes used to heckle the protesters. Not much any more, though. They sense that things are changing, though they are incapable of articulating it. But they know that with Vietnam and Cambodia, that their rears might be on the line. They get the feeling something is wrong."

"Now, most of the athletes here smoke pot. Even wear love beads and arm bands. But often they'll wear tight necks look thicker. And the arm bands emphasize their biceps."

"And maybe," said the Scot, "they'll start wearing kilts, to show off their calves."

Crimsons Capture Loop Net Crown

CHAMPAIGN — Jacksonville High school's two state meet bound doubles units paved the way as the Crimsons captured their first-ever Capitol Conference tennis meet championship Saturday.

The winners, who finished the regular season with a perfect 12-0 dual meet standing, picked up nine points in the doubles and two in the singles to shade defending champion MacArthur by two points. Following were Eisenhower 7, Centennial and Southeast 4 and Lanphier 2.

The JHS doubles duo of John Engelbrecht and Scott Hemphill, both juniors, ran their record to 16-0 by duplicating their District title sweep. The duo downed Jim Crawford and Tom Timmons of Centennial of Southeast.

Veness and Vaniter, now 14-2 after losing twice to their teammates, dumped Bill Staley and Charles McCarthy of Eisenhower 6-2, 6-2 and downed Tim Flynn and Norlund of MacArthur (District champs) 7-5, 7-5.

Phil Houser picked up one singles point by defeating Mike Sykes of Lanphier 6-3, 7-5, before losing to John Nolan of Eisenhower 6-3, 6-3. Chris Morris eliminated Dave Mudra of Lanphier 6-1, 6-2 before falling to Jim Crawford and Tom Timmons of Centennial of Southeast.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Walter H. "Dutch" Reuther, 76, who pitched for Cincinnati in the Black Sox World Series of 1919, died Saturday at a hospital.

He was a San Francisco Giant scout.

A left-handed pitcher, Reuther's major league career with the Chicago Cubs, Brooklyn Dodgers, Cincinnati Reds, Washington Senators and New York Yankees spanned the decade from 1917 to 1927.

He beat the Chicago White Sox 9-1 in the first game of the 1919 series.

Salvaging Slugger Williams' Task

By MARTY RALBOVSKY
WASHINGTON (NEA) — If there is one characteristic of Ted Williams that appeals to those who view him closely, it is his visual awareness of the people in his dugout, in his clubhouse, in his office. No strange face in his midst can escape for very long the scrutinizing of his green-brown eyes.

Ted Williams

So it is, when Rick Reichardt and his cherubic face appear in the Washington Senators' dugout two hours before game time that Ted Williams' eyes shift automatically from the reporter who is standing in front of him to the opposite end of the dugout, where Rick Reichardt is now sitting alone on the end of the bench, hatless, a purring water fountain for companion.

While Ted Williams' eyes dart back and forth, as if following an invisible tennis match, one senses that the brain behind them is cataloging impressions of Rick Reichardt while searching, perhaps, for clues to his personality.

In the Ted Williams School of Hitting, a little psychology analysis by the teacher is necessary in determining the approach to the student.

Undeniably, it is no accident that the 6-foot-3, 215-pound frame of Frederick Carl Reichardt is now draped in Washington Senator red and white. He is the latest of Ted Williams' reclamation projects, salvaged from the scrap heap of hitters with more promise than production, their swings rusty from ineffectiveness, barnacles clinging to their bats.

What Ted Williams did to make productive hitters of Mike Epstein, Ed Brinkman and Del Unser, among others, he will attempt to do with Rick Reichardt. The challenge, however, lies not in whether Reichardt ultimately hits 40 home runs and .325, but whether Williams can scrape away the remnants of the past, apply a new coat of glossy wax, and send Reichardt weaving through the rest of the American League with his reconditioned engine humming.

In the Williams School, Lesson No. 1 states that there are no short cuts to .333, and the art of hitting baseballs must be approached with the fervor of hungry men blitzing smorgasbords.

For Reichardt, the change in texts is welcome. He never did accomplish all that was predicted for him by the California Angels, who outthrust and outbid the rest of baseball for his services in 1964. At that time, he was a football and baseball star at the University of Wisconsin and the Angels paid him $175,000 to sign.

His most distinguished year was 1966 when, in the span of one month, he tied major league records for the most home runs in one inning (2) and the most strikeouts in one extra-inning game (6). He did not lead the league in getting hits that year, but he did lead it in getting hit — 13 times by opposing pitchers. He hit around the .250s in the three subsequent seasons and disenchantment set in.

"I guess it was no secret that I wanted to get away from the Angels," said Reichardt, politely and softly. "Things just didn't work out for me too well with them. When they told me I was traded to Washington, I was happy. I've always admired Ted Williams and I'm delighted to be playing for him. I don't know what he has in mind for me yet. I just have to wait and see."

What Williams has in mind for Reichardt, presumably, is a crash course in confidence building as well as in hitting therapy. It has long been the observation of baseball people that Reichardt was pressing needlessly to deliver all those home runs the Angels had expected. He was hardly the game's most relaxed hitter and wound up averaging a mere 13.3 homers in five seasons.

So it is up to Williams now, and his is a course of a different color. His language is blue and the back of his neck and sometimes his cheeks become tinted with red whenever he talks of hitting baseballs. On this day, in his dugout, he was holding court — radiantly — for two newsmen and one new Senator.

"Now...in order to control the damn bat, you gotta choke up a little...Not everybody is a Mantle and strong enough to hold the bleepin' thing at the end...Forget about all that bleepin' pull-hitting, too...It cuts down on the area of the bat you can put on the damn ball...Now about waiting for good bleepin' pitches..."

Rick Reichardt was still sitting alone on the end of the bench hatless, but he was listening to Williams now and occasionally he nodded to himself, and he finally picked up a bat and stared at it as if making a discovery. School was clearly in session.

Owners Return Rejected Offer

NEW YORK (AP) — Relations between baseball's players and club owners remained strained Friday when the owners voted to renew the same contract offer that the players had turned down by a 505-89 vote.

"The clubs believe their proposal is entirely fair and generous and represents significant gain for the players," league presidents Charles Feeney and Joe Cronin said in a statement after a joint meeting of the majors.

"I don't know what purpose there can be in renewing an offer already rejected so emphatically," said Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players' Association.

Miller was informed of the owners' action by John Gaherin, who negotiates for the owners.

"We will propose that we talk some more," said Miller. "Their statement was self-serving. They say they think they were fair. The players believe the opposite."

Miller said the date of the next meeting with the owners' player relations committee was indefinite because Curt Flood's anti-trust suit against baseball is due to open in New York Tuesday.

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who was not present when the leagues discussed the player situation, appeared before the joint session later.

"I think they all want to play ball," said Kuhn in a news conference. "I don't anticipate any confrontation."

Miller said nothing of any counter action by the players. However, some player representatives had talked of a one-day baseball moratorium on a Saturday when the Game of the Week is telecast nationally.

Kuhn said he discussed the Flood case with the owners and also outlined the general security situation and introduced the new men just added to the security staff.

"We just discussed general practices," said Kuhn. "I would not say there were innovations. It was more a case of intensification."

Cronin meanwhile, confirmed an Associated Press report that the American League would be ready to move back into Seattle "at such time as the major leagues might expand again" with the proper financing and playing facilities, including a domed stadium.

The move was seen as an attempt to head off an $82-million suit by Seattle and the state of Washington, filed March 16. The Seattle franchise was moved to Milwaukee a few days before the season opened.

IC Breaks Three Marks In PCC Meet

ELSAH — Breaking three school records and setting one conference mark, the Illinois College track team took fifth place in the team standings as Iowa Wesleyan won top squad honors in the Prairie College Conference track meet held at Principia College Friday afternoon.

Wesleyan with a 70 point team total narrowly edged host Principia with a 69 tally in the team standings, as Blackburn was third with 35½. Olivet Nazarene was fourth with 34½, followed by Illinois College with 34, Eureka with 17, and Greenville with 9½.

The Blueboys' Bill Foehr broke a school and PCC conference record as he finished first in the 120-yard high hurdles with a time of 14.5. That mark breaks the old IC record of 14.7 set by Foehr several weeks ago.

Finishing in third place the 440-yard relay team of Bill Derks, John Marshall, Bill Harper, and Mike Browning set a new record for the Blueboys in that event with a 44.8 time that tips the old mark of 45.0.

The mile relay team of Dave DeShazier, John Marshall, Daryl Mayhew, and Mike Browning also broke a previous school mark of 3:37.5 as they finished fourth in the running with a new record of 3:37.1.

Rounding out the scoring for Illinois College, Tom McLaughlin took second place in the high jump, Mark Browning was second in the discus, with teammate Dave Deshasier following in third place in the event. Mike Browning took second place in the 440-yard dash and Beal closing out the scoring for the IC with third place in the javelin.

IC Fifth In NAIA District

BLOOMINGTON — With a low team score of 298 strokes, Eastern Illinois University edged runner-up and defending champion Western Illinois by one stroke to win the championship of the NAIA District 20 Golf tournament as Illinois College took fifth place in the meet with a 324 point total.

Illinois Wesleyan was third with a 307 total, followed by Millikin with 317, Illinois College, Aurora in sixth place with 338, and Lake Forest seventh with a 348 tally.

With the top four out of five scores counting toward the team totals, Greg Neff and Duane Hess shared top honors for the Blueboys as each golfer shot a 40-40-80 over the wet, par 70 course. Walt Riley shot a 42-40-82 along with teammate Dick Justice, who shot a 40-42-82 to round out the IC scoring.

Dale Blankenship of Western Illinois took medalist honors with 38-34-72, two strokes over par.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Montreal left-hander Dan McGinn tossed his second straight complete game, his only two in the majors, stopping Pittsburgh on five hits as the Expos topped the Pirates 2-1 Friday night.

McGinn 3-1, lost his shutout in the seventh inning when Willie Stargell drilled a triple to center and Manny Sanguillen drove him home with a sacrifice fly.

Loser Bob Veale, 2-4, and McGinn both pitched shutout ball until the Expos scored two runs in the sixth.

Cards Take First From Chicago, 1-0

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Jose Cardenal's broken bat single in the seventh inning scored Joe Hagge from third base giving the St. Louis Cardinals a 1-0 victory over the Chicago Cubs Friday night.

The loss, combined with the New York Mets' 4-0 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies, reduced the Cubs' lead in the Eastern Division of the National League to one-half game, with the Cardinals one behind.

Hagge led off the scoring inning by singling to right off Phil Regan. Mike Shannon then got a single but was forced at second on pinch hitter Vic Davallillo's ground ball as Hagge went to third. Cubs' first baseman Willie Smith, playing in, was unable to get back for the bloop hit as Cardenal's bat splintered on the winning hit.

Famous Coach Shaughnessy Dies At 78

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Clark Shaughnessy, one of the all-time great coaches of football and often called the father of the T-formation, died Friday. He was 78.

Death was from natural causes, according to a spokesman for the mortuary.

Shaughnessy's fame was spread over more than four decades in both college and professional football, the first with the University of Chicago before it dropped football in 1939.

Shaughnessy's biggest game came when he piloted Stanford University into the Rose Bowl in 1940.

Shaughnessy was on the staff of the Chicago Bears as a technical adviser from 1951 through 1962 and George Halas, owner and longtime coach of the National Football League club said in Chicago:

"He had one of the greatest inventive minds of all time and he lost none of his enthusiasm or devotion even in recent years. Clark was a master strategist and organizer and it was my privilege to have had him as technical advisor on the Bears' staff for 12 years. I shall miss him tremendously."

Shaughnessy joined the staff of the Los Angeles Rams in 1948 as an adviser and that fall, when Bob Snyder resigned, assumed the head coaching job. Shaughnessy guided the Rams to the Western Division title in 1949 but lost in the playoff for the championship in a mud-engulfed Los Angeles Coliseum to the Philadelphia Eagles, 14-0.

Shaughnessy left the Rams in 1950 and was replaced by another old-time Bear star, Joe Stydahar.

In 1940 the Shaughnessy-led Stanford Indians, with Frankie Albert as quarterback, proved a sensation with the revitalized T-attack. Shaughnessy never claimed he invented the T—it had been years before—but he refined and repolished it and in the years that followed the T-formation replaced the single wing as a standard offense.

Winless in the old Pacific Coast Conference in 1939, Stanford won nine games in a row and beat Nebraska in the Rose Bowl, 21-13.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at Pierce Bros. mortuary in Santa Monica.

Shaughnessy is survived by his wife, L. Mae, three children, Clark, Jr., Janice and Mrs. Marcia Wilson, nine grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Gophers Sweep Doubleheader From Illinois

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Pitchers Dave Cosgrove and Gary Petrich led Minnesota to a Big Ten doubleheader sweep over Illinois 5-1 and 8-2 Friday to give the Gophers a 12-2 record in the conference.

Cosgrove scattered five hits in the opener, fanned seven and broke a 1-1 tie in the third with a homer. Jim Chapman's three-run homer in the fifth clinched it.

Petrich posted his eighth victory with a loss in the nightcap on another yield of five hits. The game was called after six innings because of rain.

Three extra base hits in a three-run, fourth-inning uprising put the game beyond Illinois' reach. Bob Schnietz doubled to open the fourth and scored on Scott Franzen's single. Bob Warhol tripled home Franzen and then scored on a double by Bob Nielsen.

Orioles Down Senators, 4-3 In 11th Inning

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pinch hitters Merv Rettenmund and Curt Motton combined to produce an 11th inning run Friday night, giving Baltimore's torrid Orioles a 4-3 victory over the sinking Washington Senators.

The victory was the ninth for the Orioles in their last 10 games. The Senators have lost eight in a row.

Rettenmund, batting for Elrod Hendricks, opened the 11th with a double to right field and scored the tie-breaking run when Motton, hitting for winning pitcher Pete Richter, followed with a single to right.

Frank Howard's 12th homer—a two-out blast in the eighth—gave Washington a 3-2 lead, but the Orioles retired it in the ninth. Dave May scoring on what the Senators thought was a game-ending double play.

With the bases loaded and one out, Boog Powell bounced to shortstop Ed Brinkman, whose throw to second forced Frank Robinson. Dave Nelson fired to first and the Senators raced off the field, but Powell was called safe.

Cater, Bahnsen Guide Yankees Over Tigers, 4-1

NEW YORK (AP) — Danny Cater lined a tie-breaking single in the sixth inning and Stan Bahnsen settled down after a shaky start to hurl a six-hitter as the New York Yankees turned back the skidding Detroit Tigers 4-1 Friday night.

It was the Tigers' fourth consecutive defeat and 10th in their last 13 starts and dropped them into third place in the American League East, one game behind the Yankees.

A two-run uprising in the sixth sent Detroit ace Mickey Lolich to his fourth setback in eight decisions. One-out singles by Bob by Murcer and Roy White put runners on first and second. Cater then singled, scoring Murcer and sending White to third, with Cater taking second when left fielder Willie Horton bobbled the ball.

After an intentional walk, Thurman Munson hit a sacrifice fly. Detroit 100 000 000-1 6 2 New York 100 002 10x-4 8 1 Lolich, McRae (7) and Freehan; Bahnsen and Munson. W-Bahnsen, 3-3. L-Lolich, 4-4.

Camping

Families Start Brand New Boom

By BILL ROACH

For AP Newsfeatures
"Camp out with the family? Nah, I can't stand that hard ground. Roughing it isn't for me."

"Go camping. Are you nuts? I had all the sleeping in the mud I want when I was in the Army."

"Good heavens, no! I'm a housewife, I like my house and my kitchen. Who wants to get rained on, shiver in the cold with no lights and try to get a wood fire going?"

Ten years ago these were typical reactions if one suggested that a modern family seek fun and enjoyment in family camping.

Today, he still might get the same answer—but a good look at today's style of family camping might well change the mind of almost any vividly-remembered Army veteran or inexperienced in-the-outdoors-housewife.

Family camping now is a far cry from what it used to be. There are still hardy campers who like to sleep around a campfire in sleeping bags. But the new campers are a different breed—and they're bursting the seams of a brand-new industry—trailer camping.

Here are the dimensions of this new form of family recreation:

More than one million Americans are camping out on any given night, spring, summer and fall.

There are nearly 15 million campers, says the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation.

Attendance at national parks, with camping facilities has increased 90 per cent in eight years. Attendance last year exceeded 160 million visitors at national parks. During the next eight years, the National Park Service predicts a further increase of 114 million—to a total of 276 million by 1978. Within the National Park system, there are 28,970 campsites in 418 campgrounds.

Forty million Americans will spend $2 billion this year camping, say equipment manufacturers, and the total estimate for outdoor recreation is $50 billion a year.

In the last decade, camping grew by 50 per cent or more, and in the next five years, it is pegged to increase more than all other outdoor recreation activities except water skiing.

There were 173 million camping trips last year, the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation estimates.

Recreational vehicles (travel trailers, motor homes, truck campers and camping trailers) increased their total production last year by 27 per cent, with an over-all output of more than 400,000 units, reports the Recreational Vehicle Institute. In nine years, production has increased 380 per cent and there are now more than 2½ million units on the road; by 1980 it will be 7½ million.

What has brought about this growth in family camping? First, increased leisure time and increased mobility; second, new "convenience" products for camping.

There are, today, three basic versions of portable homes—tents, tent trailers, and travel trailers and mobile homes.

The tent is still the standby for many families, but the canvas structure has grown from its pup tent days. Today you can buy tents in a variety of shapes, sizes and colors, and the prices are fairly modest.

Most Eastern campers use tent-trailers—a body on wheels with a canvas top, as a minimum. This form of camping equipment is wide in unit selection, ranging from $200 to $1,500.

The next step up—at least in price—is the travel trailer, pickup camper or mobile home. These run from $1,200 to $30,000. They are self-contained units with sleeping quarters (for four, six, even eight), dinette, stove, sink, refrigerator or icebox, heater, and lights. Most have a toilet; some have a shower, wall-to-wall carpeting, radio, TV, air-conditioning. And you can get a trailer unit from as small as 10 feet long to a 32-foot model, or a motor home from 14 to 30 feet.

Just as there is a wide choice of equipment, there is an equally wide range in places to go.

Next: The campground—a new kind of resort.

McGlothlin Illinois State Ends Carty's Hit Streak Captures Final IAC Track Win

CINCINNATI (AP)—Right-hander Jim McGlothlin hurled a five-hitter and ended Rico Carty's hitting streak at 31 games, leading the Cincinnati Reds to a 2-0 victory over the Atlanta Braves Saturday.

McGlothlin opened the fifth inning with a double off Braves' ace Phil Niekro and scored the only run he needed on a two-out single by Tony Perez. Lee May gave the Reds an insurance run in the eighth with his 10th homer of the season.

McGlothlin, obtained by the Reds in a winter trade with California, held the Braves hitless through the first four innings and breezed to his fourth victory in seven decisions.

Carty went hitless in four trips to the plate and was stopped six games short of Tommy Holmes' 1945 National League record hitting streak of 37.

The Pirates had tied it at 3-3 in the seventh when Patek scored on a passed ball after opening the inning with a walk and moving to third on Alou's single.

Personality Takes Wealthy Preakness

BALTIMORE (AP)—Personality rushed through on the outside and edged My Dad George Saturday at Pimlico and won the $203,800 Preakness Stakes. Kentucky Derby winner Dust Commander finished out of the money.

Personality, owned by Mrs. Ethel B. Jacobs and ridden by Eddie Belmonte, got home by a neck over My Dad George, Raymond M. Curtis' Derby runnerup.

Sonny Werblin's Silent Screen was third, three lengths back of My Dad George and two lengths in front of Mrs. Jacobs' High Echelon.

Robert E. Lehmann's Dust Commander, a five-length winner in the Derby, finished ninth in a field of 14 3-year-olds. His defeat means that racing for the 22nd straight year will not have a winner of the Triple Crown.

Citation was the last to win the Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes in 1948.

Belmonte guided Personality over the 1 3-16 miles on a fast track in one minute, 54 1-5 seconds to pick up first money of $151,300 from the gross purse in this richest Triple Crown race ever. It was the first time the Triple Crown event has topped the $200,000 mark.

The entry of Personality and High Echelon who had finished third in the Derby, was sent off as the fourth favorite by a crowd of 42,474 and returned $11, $4.40 and $3.20.

My Dad George, ridden by Ray Broussard, returned $3.20 and $2.60, while Silent Screen, the 1969 2-year-old champion who has been unable to regain his form this year, was $3.80 to show.

Personality is by Hail to Reason out of Affectionately and is trained by Mrs. Jacobs' son, John. The trainer's father, the late Hirsch Jacobs, who became a legend as the winningest trainer ever and also a top breeder, had considered Personality the epitome of breeding.

Personality's victory in the Preakness atoned for his eighth place finish in the Derby. In the Louisville race, Belmonte said Personality jumped a mud puddle and went off stride, causing his dismal placing.

"When I was ready to let him go he went," said Belmonte after the Preakness.

"He was running pretty good. I was in perfect position. Silent Screen was moving out and forced me a little wide. But I was hitting him pretty good and he was running."

Following High Echelon across the finish in order were Her-Jac Stable's Naskra, Nelson B. Hunt's Sir Wiggie, Birdalade Farms' Slip Wiggie, William C. Robinson Jr.'s Admiral's Skield, Dust Commander, James B. Mills' Buzkashi, Walter J. Hickley's Robin's Bug, Lawrence Boyce's Hark the Lark, Rex Ellsworth's Plenty Old and Mrs. Merle Weisman's Oh Fudge.

Each starter carried 126 pounds.

Dust Commander, again ridden by Mike Manganello, made a move on the turn for home, but it was not his day and he faded out of contention as Personality and My Dad George went to the front. Personality, a 47-year-old Argentinean, stumbled to a 74 for 210.

Steady Gene Littler cruised in with a 66 and held third place with a 207. Larry Ziegler followed with a 68 for 208.

Crews And Fritz Shine In Sweep
CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—Randy Crews' three-run triple and a steady pitching performance by Al Fritz Saturday led Illinois to 3-2 and 8-3 victories over Iowa in a Big Ten baseball doubleheader.

Crews' big blow came in the first inning of the first game for all the runs the Illini needed and Fritz posted his fifth straight victory in the nightcap.

Iowa took a 3-0 lead in the third inning of the nightcap with Don Blazin's two-run double the big blow but Illinois tied it with three in the home half of the third. They broke the tie in the fourth as Bob Windmiller lashed out a run-scoring single and Crews followed with a run-scoring double.

zooming by, My Dad George on the rail, and Personality, with Belmonte whipping away, on the outside.

The two then ran almost as one to the wire in a torrid stretch run where Personality got his neck in front to give John Jacobs his first victory in a Triple Crown race. His famous father who trained 3,596 winners, never saddled a victor in any of these events.

Personality started from No. 2 post, just outside his stablemate, and broke second. He lay fifth after the first quarter mile, sixth after a half and then moved into his challenging position, second, 1½ lengths ahead behind Silent Screen and a length in front of Dust Commander, who for a fleeting moment looked like he might add the Preakness to his Derby victory and move into position to become a Triple Crown champion.

At 1 3-16th miles, the Preakness is one-sixteenth of a mile shorter than the Derby. The Belmont, which will be run June 6, is the longest of the Triple at 1½ miles.

Indiana Claims Big Ten Outdoor Track Crown

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—Indiana's Hoosiers, scoring heavily in the sprints and weight events, captured their first Big Ten outdoor track and field title in 13 years Saturday.

Two meet marks were shattered in the 70th conference championships.

The Hoosiers piled up 18 points each in no fewer than three of the 18 events on the two-day program to dethrone Wisconsin's Badgers.

Indiana scored a record 117 points under a new scoring system introduced this meet on the basis of 10-8-6-4-2-1 for six places. Wisconsin, which had set the winning record of 80 points last season under the old scoring system, wound up Saturday with 91 points. Michigan State was third with 68, and Illinois took fourth with 66.

The victorious Hoosier squad hauled Coach Sam Bell to the steeple chase water jump and doused him in a victory celebration.

Although Indiana's triple defending champion Larry Highbaugh was unseated in all three events he won last year, the Hoosiers captured five firsts and were led by a record breaking victory by Steve Kelley in the 3,000-meter steeplechase.

Kelley was clocked in 8:48.3 to shatter the meet record of 9:00.5 set last year by Wisconsin's Fred Lands, who Saturday dropped out at the halfway mark in his title defense because of an ailing ankle.

Another meet record was established by Minnesota's brilliant freshman distance star, Gary Bjorklund, who handily won the mile run in 4:03.6. This shattered the old meet mark of 4:03.9 set by Ray Arrington of Wisconsin in 1967.

Bjorklund became a double winner by striding off with the three-mile title in 13:40.6, just one-tenth of a second slower than the meet record. The Gopher star ran the mile and three-mile only one hour apart.

Indiana's Mike Goodrich captured the 220-yard dash in which the Hoosiers piled up 18 points with defending champion Highbaugh finishing third.

Highbaugh, who won the 100-yard dash last year, placed fourth in the century Saturday with the title going to Michigan State's Herb Washington in 9.5.

However, Goodrich took second, also with a 9.5 clocking in a photo finish, and the Hoosiers collected 12 points in the 100-yard dash.

Indiana's Bob Winchell won the shot put with teammate Val Chandler taking second to pile up 18 points. Chandler won Friday's discus final in which the Hoosiers also piled up 18 points.

Church Women United Ask For Clothing In World Service Appeal

Church Women United in Jacksonville is promoting the annual spring Church World Service Clothing Appeal with collection of good used clothing on Saturday, May 23, and Sunday, May 24. The Collection Center this year is the Central Christian Church, 359 W. College Avenue.

Mrs. Robert Levins is local CWU chairman for the clothing drive, with Mrs. Lester Abbott as assistant chairman. The Collection Center will be open from 9 to 12 a.m. and 1 to 4 p.m. on Saturday the 23rd and from 2 to 4 p.m. on Sunday the 24th.

Local church groups of the area are assisting in this nationwide clothing appeal. Persons wishing to donate clothing should take it to their churches this week for packing and sorting; or they may take well-packed cartons, not too large for handling, directly to the Collection Center at the times indicated.

Practical Clothing
According to Mrs. Levins, Church World Service needs this year at least five million pounds of lightweight, serviceable, washable clothing, with children's clothing and layettes in greatest demand. Used clothing should have at least six months more wear and should be clean and mended. Not needed are handbags, hats, high-heeled or open-toed shoes, bathing suits or evening dresses.

Lightweight clothing is especially needed because most requests to CWS originate in warm or tropical lands.

Also needed are 300,000 blankets if minimum expected requests from refugees and disaster-stricken people are to be met. Used blankets and quilts of any weight material are welcome.

$3 Blankets
Or contributions may be made for purchase of new blankets at $3 each. These blankets, bought in bulk by CWS, are manufactured from 80 percent wool and 20 percent synthetic material. For victims of natural disasters or for war refugees, a blanket means not only cover, but clothes, beds, and even tents for comfort and protection.

Also needed are money contributions for processing shipments. These may be made to chairmen of local church collection groups or to Mrs. Levins and Mrs. Abbott at the Collection Center. Ten cents is needed for each pound of clothing shipped and 25 cents for each used blanket. This pays for CWS trucking costs, sorting the clothing, baling and water-proofing at CWS Service Centers in preparation for shipping, marking and insurance fees, and port charges. The processing costs are kept at a minimum because volunteers aid in the sorting process, many Brethren Service Volunteers drive the CWS trucks, and the U.S. Government contributes toward ocean freight costs.

Mrs. Donald Batz, local president of CWU, urges all churchwomen of the area not only to collect and contribute used clothing, blankets, and processing costs, but to inquire about special projects for aiding needy persons overseas.

The CWS Clothing Center for this area is located at 201 S. Main Street, Nappanee, Indiana 46550. The office for receiving money contributions is Church World Service Clothing Appeal, Box 220, Elkhart, Indiana 46514.

Communication

To the Editor:

In reading young Mr. Kane's letter to the editor this evening, I find myself in complete agreement with him on one point. I, too, would like to urge all citizens to attend the next council meeting Monday night at 7:30.

It would be a revelation to many. Just last week Alderman Quinn found an absentee ballot being cast on a roll call. Fourteen votes from 13 aldermen? HELP! HELP! (And he did this without removing his shoes—Bless him! I like the way he adds and comes up with the right answer or should I say the right question?)

In regard to the current issue of city linemen vs. city hall management, those nine linemen have done a good deed for our fair city.

How many private citizens knew beforehand the condition of the electrical structure overhead and on the ground? Forewarned is forearmed.

Granted, an error in judgment MAY have been made in the manner of bringing it to public attention, but it has been accomplished.

These men deserve your help and support. They are not on strike asking for more money. They are asking for the opportunity of performing a better job for you.

Crude and make-shift repairs to something as potent as electricity is certainly not in keeping with good safety procedures. What satisfaction does a man obtain from a job that he knows is not done properly and is powerless to change?

If the present management is unable or unwilling to give positive direction and competent leadership to the men, isn't there an alternative?

Patronage may put a man in the driver's seat, but must he remain if he can't handle the wheel?

Yours truly,
Mary E. Mellott

Former Principal Awarded $75,775 In Cass Slander Suit

VIRGINIA An amount of $75,775 was awarded in alleged damages in a slander suit heard in Cass county circuit court which terminated late Friday afternoon. The plaintiff was Monty M. Stanley, who was principal at Virginia High School 1963-64 and the defendant Miss Marjorie Taylor, social studies teacher at VHS.

The suit was filed Nov. 23, 1964, alleging "as a direct and proximate result of false, scandalous, malicious and defamatory statements made and published by the defendant greatly injured and damaged, in that he was prevented from effectively pursuing his profession as principal of Virginia High School, Illinois."

Testimony for the plaintiff was provided by many former students at the local high school and also faculty members. Strongest testimony concerned the alleged statement by Miss Taylor, reportedly in hearing of a large classroom, was: "I think you are plain stupid because you are unfit to be a principal of this school, or any other school. You are not qualified, you are a disgrace to the profession."

The suit also claimed the defendant on the same occasion said to the plaintiff, "You are just like that old Lee Harvey Oswald that shot and killed President Kennedy and that Jack Ruby, who shot and killed him in Dallas. It is people like you who do what they did."

Stanley was represented by Thomas F. Londrigan, with Londrigan and Londrigan of Springfield, and also Boyle and Wynn of Carlinville. The defendant was represented by Glen C. Colburn, president of the board of education for the Virginia School Unit many years (including 1963-64).

Witnesses testifying for the plaintiff included these former students: Sara Drinkwater McGlasson, Wood Gebhardt, Duane Rogers, Phillip Dillard, Bernal Ackerman, all of Virginia, and Carolyn Reichert Albers of Jacksonville.

Former teachers at Virginia called to testify for the plaintiff were Don George, former coach here, now at Allen high school at Rock Island; Monty Nohrn, also former coach, now residing in Winson and teaching and coaching at Stransburg-Stewardson School Unit; Bernard Tyler, former English teacher here, now at Diverson.

Professional witnesses speaking for the plaintiff were James O'Malley, former owner of the Illinois Teachers Placement Agency at Champaign; Oren H. (Mac) McKelvey, former superintendent of transportation on the Wilkins staff, State Superintendent of Public Instruction (1958-1962).

Stanley was on the witness stand for lengthy periods during the several days long trial and his wife, Rita J. Stanley, also testified.

A deposition read into the record by the attorney for the plaintiff from Milton Garrison, retired school superintendent, Kansas City District 58, Kansas City, Mo., in support of the plaintiff's claim that he was denied a contract to serve as assistant superintendent in charge of business affairs for the Kansas City district subsequent to the time he was discharged as principal of the Virginia Unit.

Testimony for the defendant were Mrs. Marcella Broadman, secretary for the Virginia school superintendent; Miss Taylor, the defendant; Mrs. Bertha Gutekunst of Jacksonville, teacher in the Virginia high school; and A. W. Henderson of Jacksonville, science teacher at VHS.

Some came from a distance to testify at the trial, which was "kept under cover" publicity until its conclusion. Included were Donna Fox Long of Sidney, former student; Charles Decker, Illinois State University student now and former VHS student, also son of Virginia Mayor Russell Decker. Also Olin Stead, retired former state director of supervisory services under Wilkins and who represented him on the stand. The plaintiff was supervisor of the accounting division in the State Office of Public Instruction during Wilkins' tenure of office. B. W. Smith, retired Cass superintendent of schools, Beardstown, and Shaw Terwilliger, ag teacher at VHS, all testified for the plaintiff.

Judge Lyle Lipe of Petersburg was on the bench. Members of the jury were Charles F. Cummings, Anne Lee Brewer, LeVita Lillian Allen, Elmer Novell, Harvey Zeek, Rose Ann Buck, Patricia Pigg, John Davidmeier, Judith Brown and Mrs. Robert Buck, all of Beardstown.

Also Edward McDonald of Ashland; Marjorie Towery of Chandler; Nathan Cox, Virginia; Herman Smith of Virginia, baliff.

'Situation Bright' Brown Tells Press

B. JOHN B. MARTIN
Seventh-Ward Alderman Dale Brown told members of the press Saturday morning that "the situation looks bright at the present time," and that there is a "definite possibility" that the difficulty between the city and linemen will be solved and the men re-hired.

Former teachers at Virginia called to testify for the plaintiff were Don George, former coach here, now at Allen high school at Rock Island; Monty Nohrn, also former coach, now residing in Winson and teaching and coaching at Stransburg-Stewardson School Unit; Bernard Tyler, former English teacher here, now at Diverson.

The picture above shows one view of the meeting in progress in the commission room at which twelve people exchanged views. Those who met Saturday were: Alderman Brown, Alderman Clarence Scott and Kenneth Kolherer, Sam E. Pack and Paul Sheppard and Mayor Dan F. Lahey for the city. Those who attended in behalf of the linemen were: O. H. Perry, business agent for Local 51, IBEW; Al Browning, associate business agent, Bud Owens, Jim Hill, Eli Marriage and former mayor Byron Holkenbrink. The meeting lasted more than two hours but was convened at 9 a.m.

Utilities Superintendent Robert Jameson was not present during the meeting. Brown said he asked Jameson specifically not to attend. Brown and Mayor Lahey met with Jameson at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Brown said he would have "no announcement" following that meeting. He said the reason he asked Jameson not to attend was that he felt the linemen might feel more free to discuss issues rather than personalities.

Brown described the meeting as friendly and worthwhile. He also reminded the press that the committee, as such, had no legal basis to "settle anything."

He said the linemen presented certain requests which would be required for re-employment, and the city agreed other points. Asked specifically whether "both sides approached the meeting table with unclean hands," Brown said he would rather not comment at the present time since the meeting seemed to go so well. "I have no wish to return to the deadlocked status of one side or the other at this point," he said.

Alderman Brown was the lone spokesman for the entire group. All other participants left the room with "no comment" to the press. Brown said he and Mayor Lahey would meet with Jameson and discuss the problem with other aldermen before making an oral recommendation of some kind to the city council Monday evening. He also said the union linemen would have to meet with the full group and business agent on their own to iron out certain things.

There are no further meetings scheduled for the fact-finders. Brown's parting comments were: "I feel we are very close to settling the dispute."

Meanwhile, members of the nine ex-linemen crew are handling emergency repairs and difficulties as they arise according to an agreement between the business agent and the mayor.

Local Man Drowns In Freak Auto Accident

James H. Willis, 53, of 504 North Church street drowned in 12 inches of water at midnight Friday when he was trapped in his car which went out of control east of Beardstown.

Willis, a resident of the area since 1967, was employed at the Norfolk-Western railroad tower in the city. He leaves surviving his mother, Mrs. Mabel Willis of Royal Oaks, Michigan.

According to Cass county coroner Dick Pugh, Willis evidently lost control of the small car he was driving about 2 1/2 miles east of Beardstown on Route 125. The vehicle went off the north side of the road, overturned several times before landing upside down in a ditch, partially filled with water.

Residents of the area heard the noise of the accident and notified authorities. State Trooper George Boehner responded and removed Willis from the wrecked automobile. The victim's head was under water and death is presumed from drowning. The Jacksonville man was pronounced dead on arrival at Schmitt hospital.

Sneak Preview Today For Vehicle Safety

The 16th annual vehicle safety check program, sponsored by the Jacksonville Police Department in conjunction with the Local Association of Insurance Agents, will officially open its week-long run at 8 a.m. Monday.

A goal of 6,000 vehicles has been set for the free program, which is intended to uncover potential vehicle safety hazards prior to the increased traveling months ahead.

A "sneak preview" of Monday's 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. opening will be offered from 1 to 5 p.m. today. The 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. hours will be in effect Monday through Saturday.

Vehicles passing through the lane, located in the 400 and 500 blocks of West Morgan, will receive a 10-point check of their steering, brakes, lights, windshield wipers, window glass, exhaust, horn, tires, seat belts and mirrors.

Motorists whose vehicles are approved will receive "Safety Checked" emblems, and the more important assurance that their vehicles are in safe condition.

Vehicles that are rejected as a result of one or more defects will hopefully be repaired and returned for re-testing, according to safety lane co-chairman Patrolman John Smith, Gary Fellhauer, and Paul Watkins.

The co-chairmen emphasized that no motorists will be issued traffic tickets as the result of any defects in their vehicles revealed by the numerous testing devices.

Information concerning the operation of all motor vehicles in the state, and license application and renewal blanks will be available at the safety lane Monday through Saturday. The service will be provided by representatives of the Secretary of State's office who will man a mobile office midway through the lane.

Official state road maps and copies of the Illinois highway manual "Rules of the Road" will also be available to motorists visiting the lane.

An added attraction this year will be a bicycle safety check lane next Saturday sponsored by local Amvets Post 100.

Aid in Program Eight local organizations in addition to the police department and insurance agents' association will participate in the operation of the safety lane.

Assisting with the program will be members of the Group for Auto Safety of Jacksonville and Routh high schools; the Knights of Columbus; Exchange Club; American Business Club (Ambucs); Kiwanis Club; Rotary Club; Lions Club; and Jacksonville Jaycees.

Employees of 11 local automotive sales and service firms will conduct the actual testing of the vehicles with members of the police department.

Dealers donating the time of their employees are Glisson Ford, Hembrough Motors, Stralman's Oldsmobile-Cadillac, E. W. Brown Motors, Cox Buick-Pontiac, Allied Motors, Walker Motor Company, Schmitt Chevrolet, Byers Brothers, Stubblefield Sales and Service, and Firestone.
